WAR BLAZES AGAIN IN NO. IRELAND

GUERILLA ATTACKS IN ULSTER

Sniping and Incendiarism Mark Reign of Terror; Castle Is Attacked

By International News Service.

London, May 20.—Central News reports from Belfast say that Northern Ireland is in the midst of wild guerilla warfare and incendiarism. Three men are reported killed and seven wounded in an attack on Castle Wellan barracks, Old Court Castle.

Numerous homes of villagers were reported burned down in Patrick.

Belfast, May 20.—Northern Ireland today is in the throes of one of the worst reigns of terror that this section has known since Christmas.

The cabinet has reported to London that the situation in Ulster is most serious. The night was one wild jamboree of sniping, burning and pillaging both sides participating.

A military officer, motoring in Baily Kinlar was held up, his wife shot and killed and he was seriously wounded. Two given were killed in a wild "free for all" street fight on the docks.

Reports from the country districts tell of raids over the border, and rumors of many casualties.

CASTLE ATTACKED.

Sinn Feiners crossed from Tyrone and attacked the ancestral home of Lord O'Neill at Antrim. Villagers rushed to the rescue of the besieged garrison and both Lord and Lady O'Neill were rescued. The castle was destroyed by fire.

After a wild night of incendiarism,

Boston American's Petition for a 5-CENT FARE

To Governor Cox, President Allen, Speaker Young, and the members of the Great and General Court:

We, the undersigned citizens and residents of the Metropolitan district, served by the so-called Boston Elevated Street Railway, believe that the time has come when our street railway system can carry our people for a five-cent carfare, and still preserve the principle that passengers should pay the cost of their service, if the Legislature will enable this reduction to be made.

Therefore, we respectfully petition the Governor and the members of the Great and General Court to give our Public Trustees now publicly operating our street railway system such enabling laws as will permit them to give us the desired reduction in carfare. And we request that this legislative action be taken this year.

CALL 5-CT. FARE MASS MEETING

Large Numbers Sign Petition to Bring "L" Rates "Back to Normalcy"

A great mass meeting for restoration of five-cent car fares in Boston has been arranged by the Boston American to take place on Boston Common on Monday at 12:30 p. m.

Mayor James M. Curley and B. Loring Young, Speaker of the House, will deliver addresses from the same platform.

Mayor Curley demands the return of five-cent fares.

Mr. Young says immediate steps can be taken to give Boston an eight-cent fare by August 1 and that he will lend his assistance in every possible way to get back the old nickel fare for Boston car riders.

SUPPORT PLEDGED.

There will be music also.

The Boston American has already received many letters from Greater Boston residents, announcing enthusiastic support of its drive for restoration of the old price of rides and telling of the writers' intention to be present at the mass meeting.

It will be an enthusiastic gathering.

Be there early to get within range of the speakers' voices.

Boston wants nickel car rides.

Signed petitions received by the American prove this.

Your presence and that of your friends at the mass meeting Monday, the first real step to get back the nickel fare will hurry restoration of the old-time fares.

YOUNG ENTHUSIASTIC.

Speaker Young, who recently criticised Mayor Curley's views about the possibility of immediate restoration of the five-cent fare, was enthusiastic today in his acceptance of the invitation from the Boston American to speak on the Common Monday.

"Delighted, I am sure," he said. "I will be glad to present my views on the fare question."

Mr. Young recently said that, by remitting the subway rentals amounting to $2,000,000 per year and by remitting the $4,000,000 which cities and towns loaned to enable the road to pay the deficit in cost of service in the first year of public control, the fare could be reduced by August 1 to 3 cents.

"I have other suggestions to offer also," he said today.

He voiced his willingness to con-

BABE RUTH BACK IN GAME

Bob Meusel of Yankees and Bill Piercy of Red Sox Also Reinstated

Chicago, May 20. — Babe Ruth, the home run monarch of baseball, was reinstated as a member of the New York Yankees today by Judge K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner. Ruth will be permitted to play in the game with the St. Louis Browns this afternoon. Bob Meusel, Yankee outfielder, and Bill Piercy, Boston pitcher, also were reinstated, effective immediately.

Judge Landis received the following telegram from Ruth this morning: "I hereby respectfully apply for immediate reinstatement to enable me to play in the game here today, Saturday, May 20."

The judge replied as follows:

"Your reinstatement application granted, effective immediately."

Similar telegrams from Meusel and Piercy were similarly answered by the judge.

Ruth, Meusel and Piercy were suspended until May 20 by Judge Landis as a penalty for engaging in a barnstorming tour at the close of the 1921 season in violation of baseball rules. They also forfeited their shares of the money won by the Yankees in the 1922 World's Series.

"L" WINS FIGHT FOR LAND IN CAMBRIDGE

The Boston Elevated today won its fight with the city of Cambridge for the privilege of occupying land at Third and Bridge streets in East Cambridge for the purpose of establishing an inclosed area for transfer purposes. The city had refused to issue permits for the work. The full bench of the Supreme Court today decided that the permission of the city was not needed where the Elevated trustees had permission of the State Board of Public Utilities.

POLICE DISCIPLINE AT LOW EBB, ACCORDING TO COMMISSIONER

seen gossiping together on street corners when they should be patrolling their beats.

That they are just as frequently seen in conversation with women in doorways and on the sidewalk.

That they are not keeping their shoes shined.

That they appear for duty with their coats unbuttoned and dirty linen showing.

That men supposed to be guarding important districts are commonly seen leaning negligently against the walls of buildings, and against poles on the sidewalk, chatting aimlessly with anyone who will listen to them.

That discipline is close to a complete break-down and must be restored by drastic action by sergeants and superior officers.

Commissioner Wilson's order started the department out of the feeling of ease amid security it has enjoyed for several years and reminded the "old timers" of similar caustic warnings from fighting commissioners in the past.

SERGEANTS PLEASED.

While the sergeants came in for particularly sarcastic treatment for their alleged failures to make their men toe the line, most of them greeted the order with acclaim.

They have long felt that the "new cops" have been inclined to trade on the necessities of the city following the police strike and regard discipline as something meant for the old-fashioned policemen of days gone by.

"Not for the Press" was the notation on the order, the first serious criticism of Boston police by a police official since the strike.

Captains, lieutenants and sergeants were frantically busy within an hour of the promulgation of the official ukase, instructing the men under them to "jack up" and get on the job right.

"This will give us the weapon we have been wanting," said one sergeant. "It assures us that the authorities are finally behind us in our effort to build a real police department.

"No more mawkish sentimentalism concerning 'the boys who do fight for law and order' every time a cop gets into trouble and deserves punishment."

TIME FOR HOUSE CLEANING

Commissioner Wilson says there have been particularly flagrant violations of the rules forbidding policemen to give cause for scandal by gossiping or walking with women while in uniform; and forbidding them to walk or talk with officers on beat except in line of duty.

Sitting down; leaning against walls; patrolling for all sorts of reasons and no reason at all, are among the other charges he makes against his men, in informing them the time has come for a reformation of the department or else a house-cleaning.

parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Morton. Her father is a contractor. She said:

"My mother, the young man, whom I have known since childhood and is a friend of the family, and I were returning home from Boston. I turned into Saddle street. Mother turned around and saw a motorcycle coming. At the junction of Ardale and Selwyn streets, Officer Barlow blew his whistle. I stopped the car. He jacked up his motorcycle, turned off his headlight, and said to me: 'I stopped you for not sounding your horn.' As a matter of fact I sounded the horn.

"Then pointing to the young man in the front seat with me, who had been doing some work on the machine for us, he said:

"'Young man, I want you to understand you are riding with my wife.' Then he placed his hand on his hip, where he keeps his revolver, walked around to the other side of the car and said: 'Get out!' Which, of course, the young man did.

"Tapping the young man on the shoulder, he said: 'If I ever see you with her again, you and I will come to blows.' He ordered him off the street. Afraid there was going to be a fight, I stepped between them and said, 'Please, Harry, stop.' He replied: 'You get back in that car,' and gave me a push.

"The young man did have his arm around the back of the seat for the simple reason he was turning around to talk with mother in the rear seat as we came through Roslindale."

DETECTIVES ON TRAIL AGAINST VALENTINO

Los Angeles Calif., May 20.—The names of five witnesses, whose testimony is believed "to be of great prosecution value," were obtained today at Indio, Calif., by Los Angeles detectives who are investigating in Mexican border towns the recent marriage in Mexico of Rodolph Valentino and Winifred Hudnut, known professionally as Natacha Rambova.

The district attorney is trying to determine whether Valentino committed bigamy in remarrying before his divorce from Jean Acker, screen actress, was made absolute.

Deputy District Attorney McClelland stated he had received a visit today from representatives of "motion picture interests" who had attempted to discourage the investigation. He quoted them as saying:

"There is much money involved. It will be very disastrous to the industry if the Valentino case is prosecuted."

He said he replied: "When you find damaged goods, you must take the hazard of the gain."

He declined to name his visitors. He said they made no "threats," but rather a "plea" because of the financial value of Valentino's contracts and the probable effect of prosecution on the "box office."

The district attorney's detectives reported that the five witnesses they had found at Indio would testify to the appearances of Mr. Valentino and Miss Hudnut at the Palm Springs Hotel.

It has been previously stated that if sufficient evidence was obtained to prove that after the marriage in Mexico the film actor brought his bride back into California, bigamy proceedings in this state could be instituted.

Mr. Valentino's attorneys have announced he was ready at any time to talk to the district attorney.

Miss Acker made her third engagement to appear at the district attorney's office today.

ACQUIT TEACHER WHO OPPOSED ROLLED HOSE

Perth Amboy, N. J., May 20.—The board of education of Marlboro township today acquitted Alvin W. White, a teacher in a grade school, of charges preferred by the parents of nine girl pupils. The charges are said to have resulted from improper remarks by the teacher relative to the girls rolling down their hose. One girl, testifying for White, said the teacher expressed the opinion that "a leg show in school was out of place."

ASSASSIN TRIES TO KILL BEBE DANIELS

Los Angeles, May 20.—An assassin was arrested at the home of Bebe Daniels, film star. He told his captors he had gone there to kill the actress. He gave his name as Charles Caprice, and said a man named "Pete" McNamara of San Francisco had promised him $25 to kill the girl.

The authorities are investigating to learn whether there was any connection between this man and the slayer of William Desmond Taylor, film director, who was shot to death in his home several months ago.

First reports said detectives had been called to the Daniels home by telephone. The telephone call was traced to the Daniels home where Mrs. Daniels, mother of the actress, explained she had put in the call.

MOTHER CALLS OFFICERS.

According to Mrs. Daniels, Miss Daniels had spent a few hours with some friends. Caprice called and asked to see the actress. He acted strangely and Mrs. Daniels engaged him in conversation until Clyde Alling, a special deputy sheriff, arrived.

Deputy Sheriffs Jones and Cooper reached the Daniels' home a short time later later. Caprice was arrested without a struggle. He was believed to be under the influence of drugs.

Caprice admitted to the authorities he had visited the Daniels' home a number of times. He claimed that while he had been hired to kill the actress he had changed his mind and sought to warn her of the plot hatched by McNamara.

McNamara, according to Caprice, is a San rancisco dope pedlar. The San Francisco authorities know nothing of him, according to a dispatch.

GOT THREATENING NOTES.

Caprice was taken to jail and then to the psychopathic ward, where he is being held under observation.

It was learned that Miss Daniels had recently received threatening letters and that P. P. O'Brien, postmaster, had received threats from a man living on South Spring street, who charged Miss Daniels prevented him from getting his mail. The postmaster turned the letters over to postoffice inspectors, who are working on the case.

Miss Daniels made the following statement:

"I was not at home when this man was there. I went out to dinner and when I returned home mother told me what had happened.

"This was the first time mother had seen him, although he had been at our house two or three times in the past week. On those occasions the maid told him that I never saw anyone with whim I was not acquainted.

"This man said he had been sent to kill me—to knife me—I believe is the expression he used—but that he lost his nerve and had come to warn us in case the man who sent him should send someone else to kill me.

TERROR REIGNS IN IRELAND

the border is experiencing another week-end reign of terror.

Several police barracks at Antrim were fired upon last night by other bands were being made at Glenarm and Carnlough. One man was killed while at work on the border. Another was wounded in the melee that accompanied the burning of eight buildings.

One of the largest garages in the city was fired at daybreak, thousands of dollars' worth of automobiles being lost.

BARRACKS CAPTURED.

Dublin, May 20.—Dispatches from northern Ireland are to the effect that Sinn Fein forces have captured the police barracks at Glenarm, Martinstown, Carnlough and Cushindah, all in County Antrim.

The garrison of the Martinstown barracks held off the raiders until its last cartridge was expended.

Fifty men attacked a mansion at Rostrevor, Tipperary, and after binding and blindfolding the servants sprinkled oil about, set fire to the place and departed, firing shots through the windows.

The servants succeeded in freeing themselves and after a long struggle extinguished the fire.

Constables on their way to relieve the contingent at the Martinstown Barracks were ambushed. One constable was killed and another was wounded.

HARVARD BLAST CAUSED BY LIQUID AIR

By BERT FORD.

Officials of the Massachusetts Department of Public Safety investigating the explosion which killed two men and injured seven in Jefferson Physical Laboratory at Harvard University today discovered the remnants of three tanks, two of which had been filled with hydrogen and one with oxygen.

"These fragments of tanks," said State Fire Marshal George C. Neal, "indicate, as far as our inquiry has progressed, that a tank of oxygen probably caused two hydrogen tanks to blow up with it.

"While it is impossible at this time to state definitely the cause of the explosion, it seems unlikely that the explosion was due to liquid air.

"We are more inclined to the theory that the origin was oxygen. State Chemist Walter L. Wedger and I found tank heads and gauges late yesterday. Inspectors James J. Grady and Michael Murphy made a minute inspection of the wreckage today with instructions to collect every particle of steel for examination.

"With a pressure of 500 pounds to the inch, explosion of any one of the three tanks would have caused just as much damage as the three did going off simultaneously."

Arrangements were made today for the funerals of the two victims.

THE DEAD

Atharton Kinsley Dunbar, 30 years old, married, a research worker in cryogenic engineering for Harvard University and the United States Government, who lived at No. 21 Chauncy street, Cambridge.

William Connell, 72 a widower, of No. 59 Ellery street, Cambridge, employed as carpenter in the laboratory building.

LIST OF INJURED.

Paul A. Harvey, first year graduate, of Rathbrun, Ind., internal injuries and lacerations. At Cambridge Hospital.

Harriet F. Dodge, first year graduate, of Newtonville, cuts and bruises and fractured ankle. At Cambridge Hospital.

Eugene H. Solow of Salem class of 1925, compound fracture of right leg. At Cambridge Hospital.

P. L. Norton of No. 126 Baywater road, Orient Heights, class of 1925, fracture of left thigh. At Cambridge Municipal Hospital.

Roscoe Hamlin, instructor in physics, of Mansfield, Ohio, minor injuries to hand and face, and lacerated face. Treated at Cambridge Relief Hospital and discharged.

MANY NARROW ESCAPES

Other students suffered cuts of a minor nature which did not compel them to go to a hospital. Many had narrow escapes.

The explosion caused thousands of dollars' damage to experimental equipment in the laboratory and wrecked the lower part of the Building Emide.

Mr. Dunbar died a martyr to science. He had been conducting secret experiments for the War Department of the United States Government for many months on the manufacture of helium, a new gas lighter than oxygen which has become of paramount importance in the use of dirigibles for war and commercial purposes.

A little more than a month ago a minor explosion occurred in Mr. Dunbar's laboratory which injured him slightly. He was at a Cambridge hospital for several days.

The investigations upon which Mr. Dunbar has been engaged were the outgrowth of work started by the government during the war for the separation of helium from natural gas.

PORTLAND CHAMBER TO SHUN BOSTON HEARING

Portland, May 20.—Maintenance and efficiency of transportation service is more important in minds of members of the transportation bureau of the Portland Chamber of Commerce than reduction in rates, they explain. So they have accordingly decided to make no appearance at hearings in Boston May 23 on differentials in favor of water over rail transportation between New York and Maine points, sought at instigation of the Maine State Chamber of Commerce.

WALSH FLAYS BONUS DELAY BY G.O.P.

The Republican majority in the Senate must pass the bonus legislation without further delay or stand accused of breaking faith with the men who gave their all in the World War. This, in effect, is the warning of Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, in the following article. Why the delay and broken promises of action, pertinently queries the Democratic leader.

"Or are we to infer some sinister influence has been working?" he asks.

By SENATOR DAVID I. WALSH

Copyright, 1922, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

Washington, May 20.—In open session of the Senate on May 8th I inquired of the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Mr. McCumber of North Dakota, when he expected the Finance Committee would report the bonus bill to the Senate. His reply was, "Within a week." He further added that as soon as the bill was reported he intended to lay aside the tariff bill and call up the so-called bonus bill for action.

Since that time no meeting of the Finance Committee to consider this question has been held and I understand that the Republican members of the committee up to yesterday said the situation remained unchanged—whatever that may mean.

Thus it appears that the bonus compensation bill has again been pigeon-holed. It does not seem possible, however, that it can be otherwise than temporary. So many statements and promises have been made by individual leaders of the Republican majority in the Senate, including favorable action by members of that party in a recent conference, to the effect that they intended to report the bonus bill and pass it before adjournment, that a failure to act now would practically amount to a repudiation of the previous claim of the justice of this legislation. Or are we to infer that some sinister influence has been secretly working for the reversal of the judgment claimed to have been reached long ago by Republican leaders?

"I hope the situation is not so gloomy as would appear from the present indifference and inaction of those who have this bill in their files, but there certainly is reason for renewed effort upon the part of those who believe in this legislation."

NEW MINIMUM WAGE FOR LAUNDRY GIRLS

Topeka, Kan., May 20.—The Kansas Court of Industrial Relations today issued its final minimum wage order, fixing the minimum wage for women in laundries and factories at $11 a week and in mercantile establishments at $10.50. The previous minimum was $10.50 and $9.50.

ONLY MORAL SUASION CAN CHECK COAL PROFITEERS

Washington, May 20.—President Harding and the cabinet at their meeting decided to use moral suasion on the coal industry to prevent profiteering during the strike, Attorney General Daugherty advised the President that the government had no legal means of preventing price raising.

Harding's Policy on Bonus 'Hands Off,' Senators Told

Washington, May 20.—President Harding will keep "hands off" the enactment of bonus legislation by the Senate, it was stated today by administration Senators who have discussed it with him at the White House. The President, tiring of inactivity on the bonus by majority members of the Senate Finance Committee, has sent this word to administration leaders. He informed the Senate leaders they would have to pass a bonus bill "without instructions from the White House."

AGENTS OF SHOE WORKERS QUIT CONFERENCE

The conference between Mayor Harland A. McPhetres, the special adjustment board and representatives of the 30,000 Lynn shoe workers to settle their wage dispute ended abruptly today after the United Shoe Workers' Union heads had accepted a temporary adjustment and the agents of the Allied Shoe Workers quit the meeting in a huff.

The acceptance of the proposed temporary 15 per cent. cut and a five and one half day week by the United Shoe Workers, 25,000 strong, was regarded as a sign that final settlement of the controversy was near at hand.

The Allied Shoe Workers comprise but 5,000 workers.

President Michael McGuirty of the Allied Union told the committee his organization could not consider the temporary plan as the Allied workers had never shared in the high wages of the war period.

When the United Shoe Workers officials declared the plan was agreeable to them President McGuirty jumped up and said:

"If that plan is forced on us we will insist on double time for Saturdays."

He was called to order, but kept on talking. A sharp verbal clash between members of the board and the Allied agents followed. It ended when President McGuirty led his colleagues from the room.

The temporary agreement accepted by the United Shoe Workers will remain in effect until a final settlement is reached. Efforts to reach this will now be speeded up.

The manufacturers have been holding out for a 20 per cent. cut for skilled help and a larger cut for unskilled workers.

A number of the city's biggest shoe plants have been practically idle the past two weeks. Manufacturers state they have closed down because of lack of orders and not for the purpose of trying to force the workers into accepting the proposed wage cut.

With the temporary settlement accepted by the great majority of the workers it is now believed a general resumption of work will shortly start in most of the factories.

ARREST NEAR IN BREWSTER MURDER

The arrest of a man for the murder of Ralph W. Brewster, station agent at Winchester, is expected to be made during the next twenty-four hours.

This statement was made by police officers who are working on the case.

According to the officers, a definite connection will be established between the murder and a member of the Wilmington bandit gang, now at liberty, and sought in every city in Eastern Massachusetts.

The officers now say that they are convinced robbery was the motive of the murder. They point to the fact that the Wilmington gang is blamed for the break in the North Woburn station a short time before the Winchester murder, and say they are confident they will be able to prove the fugitive bandit the murderer.

Special Officer Batholomew Winn of the East Boston police is close on the trail of the suspect. It is rumored that at one time during the day police were actually within striking distance of the suspect, but that he again made a narrow escape.

District Attorney Silitonstall said that he knew nothing directly bearing on the present phase of the investigation, and confined himself to the statement that "the police are still working on the case."

The description of the suspect tallies with that of the "mysterious stranger" seen in a Winchester bowling alley on the night Brewster was shot. The cloth hat left in the vicinity of the station after the murder is said to be strong evidence against him.

The police are also looking for two members of the bandit band. One is Sylvanus Cobb, who was seen in Frank Tartaglia's company just before the latter's arrest, and who is now thought to be lurking in the outskirts of Boston. The other is a man whose name the police have not announced.

LADY RHONDDA DECISION AFFECTS ALL PEERESSES

London, May 20.—The refusal of the committee on privileges of the House of Lords to permit Lady Rhondda to occupy a seat in that august body has caused keen disappointment to other peeresses who had hoped that a favorable decision might afford them the opportunity to take their places beside the peers of England.

Lady Rhondda

Attorney-General Pollock, who opposed the seating of Lady Rhondda, in an intensive legal argument, contended that the possession of a peerage was not "a public function," and therefore did not entitle the holder to a writ of membership in Parliament.

WOMAN TELLS WIFE TO GIVE UP HUSBAND

Mrs. Pollack Claims She Was Deceived Six Years by Lawrence Divorcee

New York, May 20.—"If your husband falls in love with another woman, you ought to give him up to the other woman!"

With this as her justification for having appropriated the affections of Henry Pollack, Mrs. Georgia P. Rothera, forty-six and a divorcee of Lawrence, Mass., answered Mrs. Dora Pollack of the Bronx when the two women met.

Mrs. Pollack said today:

"Why should I give up my husband when I still love him?"

Pollack was in the habit of putting on Mrs. Rothera's shoes in the morning, say witnesses for Mrs. Pollack.

SUING FOR $10,000.

In the courts of Massachusetts, Mrs. Pollack is suing Mrs. Rothera for $10,000 for alienation of affections. Pollack, forty-eight, a traveling salesman, has been married twenty-one years. Six years ago his absences from home began.

Last year, his wife says, she discovered that her husband had been living with Mrs. Rothera in the Bristol Hotel in Lawrence, Mass., of which Mrs. Rothera is proprietress. For six years, his wife alleges, her husband has deceived her.

Pollack and Mrs. Rothera are Christian Scientists and Mrs. Pollack says her husband always managed to leave New York every Sunday so as to attend church with Mrs. Rothera. Proof that her husband went to Florida with Mrs. Rothera has been submitted in affidavits filed May 1 by Mrs. Pollack's attorneys.

FRAUED, LOSE BOTH.

Pollack has one son, Sylvan, twenty-one. Mrs. Rothera has two children, Hazel, eighteen; and a son, thirteen.

Mrs. Pollack, who has received only $20 support from her husband in the past six months, stated that she was destitute.

When his wife threatened to visit Mrs. Rothera to find out the truth, Pollack is said to have objected:

"Oh, then she won't have me and you won't have me and I will be all alone. I'll go to Florida or Canada. I suppose, and start life all over again."

Attorney Mrs. Pollack are William R. Altman of New York and George L. Cohen, Boston.

SIMS ATTACKS CONGRESS FOR "UNWISDOM"

Newport, R. I., May 20.—Rear Admiral William S. Sims, addressing the graduating class of 1922 at the Naval War College here today, attacked Congress for "unwisdom" in "again exposing us and the country to the possible risk of sacrifices as the statement that "the police are still working on the case."

The description of the suspect tallies with that of the "mysterious stranger" seen in a Winchester bowling alley on the night Brewster was shot. The cloth hat left in the vicinity of the station after the murder is said to be strong evidence against him.

CURLEY TO SPEAK MONDAY AT GREAT 5-CENT FARE MASS MEETING

YOUNG TO BE HEARD IN MOVE FOR CUT IN "L" RATE

fer with Mayor Curley or anybody in authority or any reasonable suggestion to improve transportation in metropolitan Boston and reduce fares.

Because of the enthusiasm with which the Boston American's drive is being received, the most popular project that has been brought before the people in years, it is expected that 50,000 persons will attend the meeting.

The carfare situation was discussed for several hours by Mayor Curley, Sherman L. Whipple and E. Mark Sullivan, Corporation Counsel. The conference was held at Mr. Whipple's law office. None of those who took part would reveal the nature of the discussions. However, Mr. Whipple promised an important statement for today.

THOUSANDS SIGN PETITION.

Thousands of signatures have already been obtained to the Boston American's petition calling for adequate legislation this year to permit the restoration of the five-cent fare.

Among the first to sign it were Mayor Curley and Representative Martin Lomasney, who were in entire accord on this subject.

Hundreds of prominent men in all walks of life have given it their unqualified endorsement, and declared the Boston American deserved the thanks of the community at large.

The prevailing sentiment, found by a Boston American representative, is that a five-cent fare is possible, although considerable difference of opinion exists as to the methods to be employed in obtaining it.

LEGISLATURE IN FAVOR

Practically all the members of the Legislature expressed themselves as being in favor of the reduction to five cents of the Elevated fare. The majority were in accord with Speaker Cox of the House B. Loring Young, who said that the people should not be compelled to bear the entire cost of the subways.

Following are some of the many forcible words which the American has received:

MAYOR JAMES M. CURLEY:

The position taken by the Boston American with reference to the fight waged in behalf of the people for a five-cent street carfare is a conclusive proof that, regardless of legal decisions or legislative interpretations, no question is ever settled until it is settled right, and the question of five-cent street carfare will yet be settled right.

REPRESENTATIVE JOHN McCORMICK, South Boston:

I am in favor of a five-cent fare and always have been. I believe it could be obtained by complete public ownership of the Elevated. I have worked hard to bring it about. The American is doing good work.

REPRESENTATIVE JOHN D. COOMEY, South Boston:

Positively I am in favor of a five-cent fare. I am with the American all the way. There are several ways in which it could be brought about.

REPRESENTATIVE JAMES J. MULLEN, Charlestown:

I have brought four bills in the Supreme Court in attempts to obtain a five-cent fare. I am in favor of any legislation that will bring it about. I think it can be done. More power to the American.

REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM H. HEARN, East Boston:

I feel that a five-cent fare is absolutely essential to the proper growth and development of the city. It is positively prohibitive for the average man to pay ten cents for a ride to and from his work. I think a recess committee should be appointed to study the matter. I wish to commend the Boston American for its stand in this matter and assure it of my support.

REPRESENTATIVE CORNELIUS J. DRISCOLL, Ward 6, South Boston:

I am in favor of any legislation that would bring about a five-cent fare. I believe the American is doing fine work. A repeal of the present law would give an opportunity to break the 25-year contract.

REPRESENTATIVE JAMES H. MULLIHER, Cambridge:

I am with the Boston American in its fight for five-cent fares. There isn't any question but what the people need them.

REPRESENTATIVE COLEMAN E. KELLY, Ward 17, Dorchester:

I endorse the Boston American's fight for the five-cent fare. The citizens of Boston are entitled to it. They pay rents to property owners which are too high in order to meet the Elevated deficit. The working class have to ride in the street cars while trustees and stockholders of the L use automobiles. I disagree with Attorney-General Allen's opinion.

REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM H. WINNETT, Charlestown; member Street Railways Committee:

I am in favor of a five-cent fare if it doesn't reduce wages or service. We have proved in our end of the district that it pays.

REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM J. FRANCIS, Charlestown:

If other cities like New York can carry passengers for five cents on street cars, Boston can. The Boston American should be complimented for its work in starting this drive.

REPRESENTATIVE FRANCIS X. COYNE, Dorchester:

I was the first to introduce a five-cent fare bill into the Legislature. Dorchester is the largest section of Boston, and the ten-cent fare is a terrible burden to most of the people. The American has always advocated any constructive program tending to promote progress. I sincerely trust it will do everything that will eventually mean the return of the five-cent fare.

DR. FRED GOWING, Back Bay:

With any movement to reduce the fares of Boston, I am in hearty accord. Governor Cox and the General Court ought to give this matter more consideration and if they can also recommend it, give the reasons.

VICTOR WEIMER, American Baptist Publication Society:

Add my name to any petition of this kind. The average person wants this reduction in fare. It means more to him than to the fellow who can afford to run an automobile. If you ask any one about it, you will see for yourself how the masses stand on this subject.

REV. W. A. KINZIE, Baptist minister:

I would welcome the reduction in fare, and I do not think that it would impoverish the Elevated to make it. As fares go now, there is too much inequality in the charges made.

REV. A. F. REIMER, Boston City Missionary for Methodist churches:

I believe in the five-cent fare for Boston. It will help in many ways.

REV. ERNEST F. SMITH, Evangelical Association of New England:

I hear a number of persons talking over this matter of reducing the fare to five cents. It would help many of our workers to have this reduction, and I believe it will come eventually.

THOMAS P. GLYNN, chairman of the Schoolhouse Commission:

I am in favor of a five-cent fare for Boston. I am in favor of the Boston American's petition. The saving of a nickel to the poor of Boston in the congested districts would be considerable in a year.

JAMES DONOVAN, City Clerk:

I am heartily in favor of the American's petition for a five-cent carfare. Everybody in Boston is. The American should be commended for its work in trying to bring about the five-cent fare again.

GEN. JOHN H. DUNN, chairman of the Street Commissioners:

I certainly am in favor of a five-cent carfare and of the American's petition. It is about time that the people had a return to the five-cent basis.

JOHN F. DOWD, secretary of the Committee on Americanization:

I am in favor of the American's petition for a five-cent fare. It is pretty near time we rode again for a nickel.

DR. FRANCIS X. MAHONEY, Health Commissioner:

I am in favor of the Boston American's petition for the five-cent fare because it will not only reduce the cost of street car riding by fifty per cent to the citizens in general, but it will be the means of affording a greater opportunity for poor families who must, of necessity, live in the congested sections of the city, to secure a greater measure of fresh air and sunshine in the outlying park and country sections of the city.

Boston Post Backs American's 5-Cent Fare Petition

The Boston Post this morning printed the following editorial:

PULL TOGETHER FOR A 5-CENT FARE

The Boston American has started a very timely and sensible petition to Governor Cox and the General Court, urging immediate legislation paving the way to a general five-cent fare.

It is a good petition, well worded and backed up by sensible and forcible arguments. The Boston Post approves it, and urges its readers to support our contemporary's movement.

The American, in this connection, calls on Mayor Curley and Speaker Young, both of whom have declared in favor of the proposal, and the influence of both of whom is important and effective in this direction, to bury their political hatchets, and combine forces to secure the necessary legislation to make it easier for the trustees of the Elevated to attain the desired end for the public good. This advice is practical and well expressed, and the Post hopes that it will be accepted by both officials.

All up for a return to a five-cent fare era on Boston's transportation system, or as near to it as it is possible to attain.

WILLIAM M. McMORROW, City Collector:

I am most certainly in favor of the five-cent fare and also the American's petition.

SEEKS LOW FARE TO PARKS FOR CHILDREN

Attorney Owen Gallagher of No. 73 Tremont street wants the Boston Elevated to permit boys and girls between five and sixteen years to ride to and from City Point and other recreation centres for a five-cent fare.

He has had a bill to that effect filed in the House of Representatives.

Attorney Gallagher is an ardent supporter of the Boston American in its general drive for five-cent fares, but he believes his bill, which would provide for the five-cent fare for children from June 15 to September 15, would furnish immediate relief where it is most needed.

He frankly regards his own bill as a temporary one and expresses the utmost confidence that the Boston American and its allies will ultimately get the five-cent fare for every one.

"There is no question the paper will get the signatures of the majority of the people on its petition for a general five-cent fare," he said.

"But in the meantime the little children are to be looked after, particularly the children of working men.

"There are fathers of families today who have eight and nine children, and who are earning only $15 a week. The children of such men are the ones I would aid.

"This bill means, for many, the difference between a dip at L street or a walk in Franklin Park and hot days of misery in stuffy tenements or baking courtyards."

Mr. Gallagher's bill was offered in the House by Representative Kelly of South Boston.

Girls, a Chance to Help the Drive for 5-Cent Fare

GIRLS! GIRLS! GIRLS!

Do you want a five-cent fare?

Are you willing to contribute your services for a short time?

Any girls who are willing to distribute Boston American petitions at the mass meeting on Boston Common, kindly communicate with the petition editor before 11 a. m. Monday. The services of boys and men for the same purpose will also be welcome.

PAPAL BLESSING FOR KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Rome, May 20.—Pope Pius XI today gave his blessing to the work of the Knights of Columbus, now under the direction of Edward Hearne, are planning a series of non-sectarian playgrounds throughout Italy. Word from the Vatican said the Pope's blessing was granted "on the work which the Knights of Columbus are accomplishing for the increment of religious and public morality." The papal blessing was also granted to all members of the K. of C.

HOPE NOW TO FLOAT COLLIER MIDDLESEX

Portland, Me., May 20.—Chances for saving the collier Middlesex stranded on Trundy's Reef, near the entrance to Portland Harbor, were considered brighter today. The vessel is resting easily, with forward parts in twenty-one feet of water, but no water aft. An attempt is to be made to lighten the collier. Coast guard cutter Ossipee and tugs are standing by.

'L' DECISION IS SCORED BY WHIPPLE

Sherman L. Whipple in a letter to Mayor Curley today reviewed the recent car-fare decision of Attorney General J. Weston Allen. He expressed surprise at the attitude taken by the attorney general, intimating that Mr. Allen provided white wash for a contract which Mr. Whipple asserts was based on "bribery and corruption of the Legislature." The letter says in part:

"I have read with interest the opinion which the learned Attorney General of the Commonwealth recently rendered to the Rules Committee.

"While he does not so state in explicit terms, his opinion seems to have been generally accepted as saying in substance that even if it be a fact that a band of promoters get a legislative contract with the Commonwealth as a direct result of bribery and corruption of the Legislature, yet such promoters can hold the Commonwealth to the contract, not matter how gross the corruption or how unconscionable the obligation.

"This is certainly a startling proposition. Few have believed, I think, that the law throws such protecting care over legislative corruption. The realization that such is the law will come as a shock to the honest, law-abiding citizens of our community.

IGNORES COMMON RULE.

"Everyone is familiar with the rule that if a party secures a contract from another by corrupting that other's agents, the contract is not binding; but this rule of common honesty it seems (to the Attorney-General says), does not apply to a sovereign State.

"So far as reflects what you are attempting to achieve, the opinion of the Attorney-General, whether right or wrong, is final. It makes an appeal to the courts to set aside the contract impossible; for proceedings for that purpose would have to have the Attorney-General's endorsement, and such endorsement is foreclosed by his opinion.

"There is still another feature of the situation to which perhaps I may properly call your attention. Comments of the press expressing satisfaction with the attorney-general's opinion have entirely ignored in their consideration the real criticism of the Public Control Act, the real weakness of it.

"They refer to the fairness of car riders' paying the cost of their transportation; to the impossibility of expecting the Elevated road to furnish rides at less than what the transportation costs.

BUILD UP ROAD.

"But this is not the point at all. If the Public Control Bill provided only that car riders should pay the cost of transportation, there would be comparatively little to criticise. The bill means much more than that.

"The reason why it is necessary for the trustees now to exact a ten-cent fare is, not because the cost of transportation amounts to that, but I notice (to enable the trustees (in the words of Chairman Jackson) 'to put the property, which came to them depleted and exhausted, into good operating condition.'

"That is what the car riders on the Elevated road are paying taxed for, not merely the cost of transportation, but to furnish a sum, variously estimated from ten to fifteen million dollars, to build and restore a 'depleted and exhausted' property."

PLAN WELCOME TO LLOYD GEORGE

London, May 20 (By the Associated Press).—There is every prospect that the public welcome organized for Prime Minister Lloyd George on his arrival from Genoa tonight will be noteworthy and enthusiastic. It will, however, apparently be a partisan and not a national welcome.

The days of solid national support for Mr. Lloyd George vanished soon after the war, and he has long since reverted to the position of a political leader.

Today's editorials on the breakup of the conference are significant as hearing upon the Prime Minister's position. On one hand, he is severely criticised for his farewell address at Genoa and for the greater part of his public conduct there. On the other hand, he is praised for his courage and resourcefulness in the face of immense difficulties and for what the eulogists term his considerable achievements, even though these fell short of his aims.

As for the conference itself, even its strongest apologists do not claim it has been a great success, but look to the coming meeting at The Hague for a sequel of real value.

TEXTILE MILLS OFF 485,240 SPINDLES

Washington, May 20 (By International News Service).—The Census Bureau announced today that 24,514,926 cotton spinning spindles were in place in the United States on April 30, of which 21,329,256 were operated at some time during the month compared with 21,874,496 in March. The total number of active spinning hours in April was 8,483,866,365.

Literary Jail Job Is Selected for College Gunman

Worcester, May 20.—"Flash" Kunin, the college gunman, brains of a gang that kept Worcester in a state of holdup panic for months, is to have a "literary" job in State prison. The former Yale student, just out of his teens, was sentenced to from three to ten years. He will teach "literachour" to some of the low-brow inmates. If any of the prison guests thinks Euripides is a soup Kunin will put him right.

WOMAN MEMBER OF WINCHESTER BOARD QUITS

A new factor was introduced into the turmoil in Winchester over the announcement of the School Committee that it intends to dismiss Edward E. Thompson as principal of the high school at the end of this term by the unexpected resignation of Mrs. Charles Zueblin, one of the two women on the board.

Mrs. Zueblin declares she intends making a trip to Europe and believes that a more active member is needed on the board. She denied that her resignation was connected with the controversy over the principalship.

"I am standing with the board on its determination to dismiss Principal Thompson," said Mrs. Zueblin today, "and have been with the other members from the first. My resignation has nothing to do with that matter."

Members of the Citizens' Committee of Eight, which conferred with the board on the question of Mr. Thompson's proposed dismissal, declared today that they are "utterly disgusted" by the attitude of the board.

"We have learned nothing, and we have accomplished nothing," said one of the members today.

Evasive answers and flat refusals to explain prevented the citizens from learning anything about the case, they declared.

Chairman Robert F. Guild of the School Committee refused to state the charges which had been brought against Mr. Thompson without the latter's written permission.

Horatio C. Behrman a member of the citizens' organization, promptly went to the principal's home and secured from him a note granting such permission. Then the School Committee said they believed it would be unwise to give out the charges at this time, although they intimated this might be done later.

WARNING TO AUTOISTS DODGING STREET CARS

The Safe Roads Federation of Massachusetts, in a statement issued today, calls the attention of motorists to two facts that its chart reports for the past thirty days disclose, first, that many drivers are being reported by street car motormen and pedestrians for violating the rule that prohibits a motorist from driving within eight feet of the running board or lowest step of a street car which has stopped to allow passengers to get on or off; and second, the unlawful operation of cars by minors. The co-operation of automobile owners is requested upon these two points.

Collisions of automobiles with street cars show an increase in the Greater Boston area during the past 30 days, due to cutting in in front of the trolley cars, as if an effort is being made to check this.

THIEVES GET $75,000 IN SHOES AND LEATHER

Brockton, May 20.—Police of Rockland, Abington and Whitman admit that they are baffled by the series of robberies during the past few weeks, in which shoes and leather worth more than $75,000 have been stolen.

J. E. French Company of Rockland have lost shoes and skins worth $2,500 and a consignment of leather stolen from the Rice & Hutchins plant is understood to have been worth $10,000. Other victims of the thieves are E. T. Wright Company of Rockland, M. N. Arnold Company and L. A. Crossett Company of North Abington, and the Commonwealth Shoe & Leather Company of Whitman.

Police believe that automobile trucks are used to carry off the loot.

CHARGES PLOT IN DICKERMAN TRIAL

Mrs. Eugenia Dickerman of Somerville, whose verdict of $32,500 won in an alienation of affections suit against her mother-in-law, has been set aside today charged she had uncovered a plot to trap her in a building in Boston.

The plot she declares, was attempted last December. Only the fact that she sent her brother to investigate saved her from being caught in a compromising situation in an empty office in a building on Milk street, Boston.

"It was on Dec. 22, 1921," said Mrs. Dickerman, "that a strange man representing himself as from the United States War Risk Department, came to the door and asked to see me.

"He told me a Mr. Edwin Blake of the War Risk Department wanted me to come into his office the next morning to see him on important business. I asked him what it was all about, and his answers were very hazy. I was at once suspicious.

SENT HER BROTHER.

"I asked him how he knew where I was stopping, and he could not explain. I told him I had no business with the government insurance bureau. He insisted that I was wanted however, and then told me to go to a room in the office building at No. 101 Milk street.

"The next morning I sent my brother down to that address to investigate. He found that the room was empty, and that there was no such person as Edwin Blake about.

"He investigated further and found that there was no one by that name in the employ of the War Risk Bureau. It was nothing but a deliberate attempt to trap me alone in that empty room.

"I later found out that the man who told me to go to that address was once a Boston police officer. He was one of those who went out on strike. He is employed by a detective establishment in Boston. This same detective, I learned later, had made the statement that he would cut off a right arm in order to get me.

"STILL HOUNDED."

"I am still hounded to death all the time by detectives who are trying to trap me and blacken my reputation. They have been among my friends and have given themselves away by trying to get my friends to tell things about me.

"My eyes are open, however, and I have no fear. I shall not run into any of the traps."

DANCER MAKES UP WITH HUSBAND

Mrs. Annie G. Rose, former toe dancer of England and now an employe of a fashionable Boylston street designer, is happy again with the man she loves despite the rocks which at one time threatened to wreck their marital bark.

Annie G. Rose

She is her husband, George H. Rose, navy yard worker, whom she tried to divorce on the grounds of cruel and brutal treatment and then, after airing the trouble in the Superior Court before Judge Hammond, changed her mind and went back to his home at No. 46 Fenwick street, Malden.

Both are natives of Nottingham, England, and it was there Mr. Rose met her while on a visit to his old home. She came to America last January and they were married by a justice of the peace in Boston immediately after her arrival.

In her suit Mrs. Rose said she had been deceived as to her husband's wealth and that he had led her to believe he was a man of large property in the United States instead of merely an employe at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

"But that's all over now," she said. "We are getting along a lot better than some couples who never had an open break. It sort of cleared the air for us and there'll be no more storms."

BELIEVE N. Y. SUICIDE IS BOSTON WOMAN

Believing that Annie McDonald, sixty-five years old, who committed suicide last Wednesday at No. 257 West Twenty-third street, New York, may be a Boston woman, the New York police toda yrequested the police here to hunt for the woman's relatives or friends. This belief is based on the fact that a Bible and religious pamphlet bearing the imprint of the First Presbyterian Church of Boston, Columbus avenue and Berkeley street, were found among the woman's possession. The woman's body has lain unclaimed at

COSTS SKIPPER $7,500 TO PUNCH HIS WIFE IN JAW

New York, May 20.—Captain Alfred T. Howard, former skipper of racing yachts, lost just $7,500 because he struck his wife on the jaw with his fist, according to developments in the Supreme Court here. The captain testified that he had agreed to give his wife a $7,500 interest in his Eighty-first street home if she would return to him following a separation. The reconciliation was "only a bluff," he said, as she left after a week. He sought to compel her to return her share of the house, but the court disallowed his claim when the wife testified she left him because he struck her.

LAWRENCE MAN HELD FOR MAINE MURDER

Portland, Me., May 20.—Frank Ohida of Lawrence, Mass., was held for the murder of his brother-in-law, John Kamendulis, here, after probable cause had been found. Kamendulis was found dead in a pool of blood in the witchen of his home on May 13.

The Greatest Motion Picture Ever Made Begins the Second Week of its Run Today

Read what the reviewers said, in part:

"It is a constant delight. Even surpasses 'Humoresque.' The triumph of pantomime ever print."
—New York Sun

"Another 'Humoresque.' It seems quite as good if not better. We forgot the audience and wept at Davidson's struggles."
—New York Globe.

"A second chapter to that magnificent domestic drama, 'Humoresque.'"
—New York Journal.

"We liked it better than 'Humoresque.' We give Frank Borzage due credit. The settings are very fine."
—Harriette Underhill, New York Tribune.

"A living picture rather than a moving picture. Miss Gordon and Mr. Davidson could be advertised as 'appearing in person, not a movie.'"
—New York Herald.

Story by Fannie Hurst, author of "Humoresque." Directed by Frank Borzage, who directed "Humoresque." Scenario by John Lynch and settings by Joseph Urban.

HENRY BARRED IN TALK BY MRS. FORD

By GRACE DESCHAMPS

"Yes, I had lunch yesterday at the Copley-Plaza with a party of friends and no one knew who I was!

"It was delightful! Cameramen and reporters had followed me all of the first day I was here and I decided that I should elude everybody the next day—and I did."

With a hearty laugh which expressed her satisfaction at fooling a curious Boston, Mrs. Henry Ford, sank into a chair in her luxurious private car.

"I am tired," she said, simply. She looked it. All the forenoon she had explored the halls of old Harvard and the treasures of the museums in the University City. From there with a party of friends, Mrs. Ford visited the Arnold Arboretum. The rest of the day she spent motoring along the North Shore, stopping for tea at the Beverly home of Mrs. Henry W. Peabody.

PRAISE FOR ARBORETUM

"Your Arnold Arboretum is the most wonderful sight I have ever seen!

"I am going to model my rock garden at Dearborn after it. I shall be transplanting something of Boston, shall I not?" Mrs. Ford, in the only interview she had with any Boston newspaper, expressed her unqualified delight over the beauties of the Hub.

"Those beautiful lilacs at the Arboretum! I have a collection of nearly every variety of lilac but I am going to add two specimens I saw in Boston."

"Yes," in answer to a question, "I have been in Boston before but never to stop long enough to really see your city.

"Those glass flowers at the Harvard Museum—they are worth a dozen trips!

PASSION FOR FLOWERS.

"Flowers, you know, are something of a passion with me. I love them in a personal sort of way. Lilacs are my favorite flower—they mean Spring and all the things that Spring promises.

"Trinity Church is beautiful. I think it is one of the finest churches I have ever seen. But then, Boston is full of beautiful buildings.

"No, I have no friends in Boston except Mrs. Henry Peabody of Beverly, Mrs. Peabody and I have mutual friends.

"No, I'm afraid I didn't notice your Boston girls particularly. Aren't girls the same anywhere?

"I came expressly to see the Arboretum, but I visited Mrs. Peabody's Japanese garden. It is a very fine one."

WON'T DISCUSS HENRY

Mrs. Ford declared she was particularly interested in the plan of the Women's City Club here. She is president of the Women's Civic Club at Dearborn and is an active clubwoman.

Her husband's business or political associations are a subject taboo with Mrs. Ford. She declined to discuss Henry in any way except to admit that she did not ride in a flivver while in Boston.

Mrs. Ford, herself, is a well-preserved looking woman of about middle age. Her secretary insists that she is only 43. She is well and tastefully dressed.

Mrs. Ford's private car, "Fairlawn," leaves the Irving street railroad yards at 2.15 this afternoon. She has finished her sight-seeing and will not appear in public today.

JUBILEE OF PRIEST TO BE CELEBRATED

A three-day observance of the golden jubilee of the ordination to the priesthood of the Rev. John W. McMahon, D.D., pastor of St. Mary's Church, Charlestown, will open tomorrow morning with a solemn high mass in St. Mary's Church. His Eminence William Cardinal O'Connell is expected to preside at the mass. The sermon will be delivered by Mgr. Nesgle, who was Rev. Fr. McMahon's first curate at St. Mary's Church, forty-one years ago, at which time the church was located on Rutherford avenue, Charlestown.

BOSTON CIVITAN CLUB MEETS TO ORGANIZE

An organization meeting of the Boston Civitan Club, now in process of formation, was held at the Boston City Club. When fully completed, the new club will become a unit of the International Association of Civitan Clubs, which has its headquarters at Birmingham, Ala. "Builders of Citizenship" is the club's motto.

$3,680,000 IN GERMAN CUSTOMS FOR ENGLAND

London, May 20.—The Commissioners of Customs collected 3,680,000 pounds under the German reparations act from April 1, 1921, to March 31 last, it is announced. Of this sum 3,104,000 pounds has been paid to the exchequer to help defray the costs of the British army of occupation and the balance is in the hands of the Paymaster-General.

STANDARDIZATION OF AUTO NUMBERS IS URGED

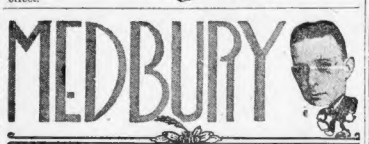
Hartford, May 20.—Standardization and regulation of motor vehicle factory numbers by Federal legislation to prevent the theft of automobiles, is proposed by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Stoeckel of Connecticut in a letter sent to members of the State delegation in Congress.

Fresh From Paris—Latest From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

IN a season when panels and hanging draperies mean so much, what more natural than that the entire skirt of a Paton gown should be a series of graduated panels falling from beneath a wide girdle. The gown is of pale green crepe de chine and each panel is weighted with silver embroidery.

MIDNIGHT blue taffeta woven with conventionalized pine cones, in silver, makes a Caret afternoon dress that aspires to bouffancy without really achieving it. Straight, narrow lengths of the material fastened to the shoulder straps reach to the hem of the skirt and the role of sleeves. The twisted girdle is here used with charming effect.



Says the Wireless Is a Wonderful Thing. We Can Now Receive Kisses Without Any Strings Attached to Them

Now that it is possible to send kisses by radio, thousands of men are trying to get jobs in broadcasting stations.

And all the old maids are installing receiving outfits.

They figure they can at least pick up a few kisses out of the air.

Many a radio kiss has gone out C. O. D. and come back P. D. Q.

The wireless is a wonderful thing. We can now receives kisses without any strings to them.

It's great to be in New York and be able to kiss your girl good night in San Francisco.

Still, you don't know how many dames have picked it up on the way out there.

You could send it over a regular route and make one kiss do for several women.

You've got to be careful in sending smacks to a married woman. Her husband may be listening in.

It's nice, though, when your wife is going away. You can kiss her when she leaves and kiss her again when she arrives there.

If a fellow didn't want to kiss his wife he could get out of it by telling her he was tuning up.

You could send her a kiss to Chicago and it wouldn't be your fault if the kiss wanted to stop over at Buffalo.

You did your part and sent it F. O. B., and you can't help it if it gets there in B. O.

If your girl doesn't like the way you kiss over the radio she'll soon give you the aerial.

You used to kiss her on the front porch. Now you kiss her on the housetop.

Many a radio kiss tastes as though it had been grounded.

There are several codes to use, but the married men should use the code of honor.

You can tell a girl how much you love her and kiss her all you want by radio and she's got nothing in writing.

So there's only one thing to do, kiss her by radio, and if she likes it tell her you'll appear in person the next evening.

BEDROOM STAR AT WESTPORT IS 'HET UP'

Westport, May 20.—This one time Quaker settlement, which leapt into fame through the radicalism of its high school flappers in conducting a successful strike to have their suspended principal reinstated, will have another red letter day on its rapid march to progress Monday, May 29, when its first beadroom play will be produced at the Town Hall.

For it is practically certain that despite the protests of the right wing conservatives, including members of the town government, the high school flappers will present the saucy playlet "The Little Co-Ed," in aid of their piano fund.

The sole possibility of the alleged risque and naughty farce not being played is that Miss Lillian Hawes, scheduled to be leading lady, may develop a regular case of temperament. For she resents the fact that the property of her production has been questioned, and although she continues to rehearse the part, admits that if there is much more criticism of the play, she may quit.

"There is nothing the matter with the play," she declared, unconsciously quoting a Broadway manager famed for naughty plays when professional reformers banned one of his pieces from the stage.

"The play is all right. But if everyone continues to make so much fuss over it I won't play it."

And she stamped her feet giving a realistic miniature interpretation of a temperamental star all het up.

Chairman Slocum of the Board of Selectmen, who have jurisdiction over the Town Hall, admitted that he has granted permission to Principal H. Eugene Cox, head of the bolshevistic high school pupils, to present the play in the Town Hall.

ABANDONMENT OF BIG STEEL MERGER SEEN

New York, May 20.—Abandonment of the proposed merger of independent steel companies was forecast today as a result of the withdrawal of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company from the six-company combine.

While a statement of Thomas L. Chadbourne, counsel for the interested companies, which was issued after Youngstown's withdrawal, set forth that "conferences of the other five companies are being continued to determine whether it would be advisable to consider the consolidation of some or all of them," little hope was expressed that merger negotiations would be continued.

J. A. Campbell, president of Youngstown, previously had been agreed upon as head of the proposed merger, serving as chairman on the board of directors and chairman of the executive committee.

Executives of the remaining five companies—Midvale Steel and Ordnance, Republic Iron & Steel, Inland Steel, Steel and Tube of America and Brier Hill Steel—were expected to confer with Mr. Chadbourne and representatives of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., bankers, to decide upon a course of action.

Meanwhile the reason for Youngstown's withdrawal, following closely upon that of the Lackawanna Steel Company, purchased by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, remains a mystery.

HUNT RICH MOONSHINE BACKERS IN SOUTH

Washington, May 20.—Moonshine financiers are now being sought by dry law enforcement agents in the South. In Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky, prohibition officials said, it has been discovered that men with money are setting up illicit stills and paying moonshiners regular wages to operate them. When the operators are caught, it was declared, they receive $5 a day from their employers while in prison.

FATHER TO IDENTIFY MISS TOWNER'S CHILD

The man Miss Emily Towner says is the father of her child will come to Boston to establish the identity of the baby which is claimed by the young woman as hers. Miss Towner made this statement and declared that the baby's father had marks on his chest that corresponded with those on the chest of the child now in the possession of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Ormsbee. Miss Towner says the child is hers.

VICTIMS OF LOVE SHOOTING TO MARRY

New York, May 20.—Vicente Licardi, twenty years old, through his attorney asked and received bail in order that he might marry Margaret Polanti, eighteen years old, whom he shot and wounded May 8 when she spurned his matrimonial offers. After shooting Miss Polanti Licardi turned the revolver upon himself. Both are now on the road to recovery and, within a few days the marriage ceremony will be performed, the girl now realizing she did love him after all.

PIRACY TO BE CHARGED TO 18-YEAR-OLD YOUTH

West Palm Beach, Fla., May 20.—Federal authorities have entered a charge of piracy against Sanford Mobley, eighteen-year-old youth, held in connection with the robbery of the Bank of Stuart, near here, last week, who they declare to be a leader of pirate bands responsible for numerous raids recently on the carcoes of vessels in the vicinity of the Bahama Islands.

THIEF LEFT NIGHTIE AND MAY REGRET IT

Worcester, May 20. — Police are looking for a burglar who includes in his kit one generous-sized nightgown. The thief invaded the home of Mrs. W. C. Spinney, No. 133 Institute road, helped himself to a $50 Liberty bond, $2 in cash and $25 worth of jewelry. Then he left, forgetting to take his nightie with him. The police are holding it as a clew.

DRAMA RESUMES AT MAJESTIC THEATRE

Quietly, unostentatiously and without a ripple the Shubert season of vaudeville closed at the Majestic Saturday night. Whether it will resume in the fall is not stated but it seems likely. In the meantime the "drayma" returns to the Majestic with a piece called "The Unloved Wife."

Very little is known about this play except that they propose to run their matinees for ladies only, while at night anybody over the age of sixteen will be admitted. This would indicate that it is one of those frank, fearless expositions of the evils of vice which usually get in trouble with the censors.

If some one will explain to me why no men can get in in the afternoon, but are welcome at night I'd like to know. As a critic I ought to attend one of those ladies matinees, for it would seem as though they were going to cut loose when they get the girls all by themselves.

Cohan is Very Lazy, Hates to Work

Here you are, the richest actor in America, a successful composer, author and producer, and you work harder than any street laborer. What's the idea? Do you like to spend every waking hour doing something you don't have to do? What fun do you get?

I fired this string of questions just like the half witted hired man in "The Tavern" at George M. Cohan as he was making himself up in his dressing room at the Tremont.

Cohan grinned. "I once asked something like that of your boss William Randolph Hearst. I said 'Here you are tremendously rich, a success in the newspaper business and every other you've tackled. You can get anything you want with the money you have and the brains you've got. What would you rather be than anything in the world? Hearst thought for a minute and then he said: "I guess I'd rather be a good newspaper man than anything else in the world."

"As far as I'm concerned I'm naturally lazy. I wouldn't do any work if I didn't have to. The only way I accomplish anything is to take on a load or responsibility, to become responsible for other people and interests, and then I have to sweat like a horse to get out from under.

"I am really forced to do everything I do. I undertake to write a show, hire a lot of actors and order a lot of scenery. Then I've got to write the show. If I didn't I'd sell up like that the show would never be written. I never intended to play in "The Tavern." Circumstances forced me into it, to keep the show going and the actors in their jobs. And that's the way it's always been with me since I was a kid. I've always been driven. But I am naturally lazy."

The Career of Walter Catlett

There's a girl in "Sally" who starred as one of the little ponies, then grew up to be one of the dishwashers, and is now one of the six tall show girls. That's how long "Sally" has been running. She was sixteen when she landed the job, and small; now she is nearly eighteen and tall. She grew up with the show, literally speaking.

Walter Catlett told me this. He also told me his real name is Timothy Noonan, which just goes to show that although fighters of other nationalities take Irish names to go into the ring, many of Irish ancestry doff their Irish names to go upon the stage.

Catlett is still a young fellow, more or less, says he spent sixteen years in stock, and five or six in musical comedy. He explains that he was only seven when he began acting, even if you add ten years to that it makes him young, as young men go nowadays.

Catlett was a member of the Morosco stock company, when Fay Bainter, Marjorie Rambeau, Charlie Ruggles and some more famous people whose names I forget were in the troupe. He got training in the classic and modern drama which has been invaluable to him in musical comedy. He didn't say how.

The Colonial Theatre was built before they began to coddle the actors, but for this engagement they have constructed a shower bath to be used by Catlett and Errol, in a vacant closet near their dressing rooms. It works and everything. Catlett offered to prove it by taking a bath, but just then he got his cue.

"Acting Easier Than Baseball," Says Donlin

"Which do you like better—" is invariably the first question put to Mike Donlin—"the stage or baseball?"

And Mike, still as quick as he was in his days on the diamond, replies tartly, "If you make one mistake in baseball, you're a lobster, and it takes you a week to recover. But on the stage," he continues, his mood growing more expansive, "You've got three acts to make good in. If you're a bum in two acts and make good in the last, they think you're great and you recover your lost glory the same night; everybody's pulling for you out in the audience and behind the scenes to help you along, but when you've made a mistake in baseball everybody's pulling against you especially all the young fellows on the team who are waiting to get into the game, each one of them praying you'll get hurt so he can get a chance at it."

Mike's step from the clubhouse to the dressing room isn't any recent experience. As a matter of fact he has been collecting steady salary as an actor ever since his return from the famous globe girdling tour of the Giants in 1914. And Mike thinks the best thing that can be said about him, is that he's just as good an actor as he has been a baseball player. As "Johnny Daly" in "Smooth as Silk" at the Selwyn Theatre, he has already earned this reputation in Boston.

Naughtier the Show Nicer the Actors

Apropos of "Ladies' Night," the hot-room farce at the Plymouth, this column last week stated as an observation that the naughtier the play the nicer the people in it appeared to be. The representative of the Turkish bath entertainment rises to rat us the back for our keenness of discernment.

"A. H. Woods," he says, "has made a success of farce production by selecting the very nicest people in the business to read the lines. But he is not a pioneer in this plan. The Selwyns selected Madge Kennedy for the leading role in "Fair and Warmer," which contained lines that only the most innocent-looking actress could bring to put across the footlights without bringing down the censor. Woods followed with "Up in Mabel's Room," and knowing that the script had situations a bit risque, to put it mildly, the wily manager chose the beautiful Hazel Dawn to do the principal part. In 'The Girl in the Limousine' he used sweet-faced Doris Kenyon, and when it came to casting "Ladies' Night In a Turkish Bath," he looked about until he located stately Allyn King. All of these actresses would commit anything short of murder on the stage and it would not offend, and it might also be pointed out that there has not been a bit of scandal about any of the ladies mentioned." The producers must be very, very careful of the reputations of the girls they put in their naughty plays.

Art Lovers Pounce on Poor Critic

Several lovers of art have been kind enough to write me expressing their opinion frankly and clearly of my low mentality for not appreciating "The Hairy Ape."

I notice Police Magistrate McAdoo in New York has just accused this great addition to the drama of being "vile," "obscene" and "indecent." I don't know what kind of a thrill it gives lovers of dramatic art to hear profane language, but I hold to the principle that language for which you would be arrested if you used it on the street in the hearing of a policeman should not be used in a theatre where decent women and children may overhear it. Such language is not "strong" or "virile" as the art lovers put it, it's dirty. Aside from the indecent language I consider the "Hairy Ape" a terrible bore, and Eugene O'Neil, the author 10 per cent. genius, and 90 per cent. buncoman. And I'll make a bet the entirement never lives to reach Boston.

All the Play Needs Is Good Story

The drama is in no need of a new form of expression, which is the only claim to distinction of things like "Emperor Jones" and "Hairy Ape." The method of telling a story on the stage has not changed materially since the Greek dramatists of two thousand years ago. The conventional form is perfectly satisfactory when it is used to clothe new, original, unusual ideas.

A story should be told in a play with as close an adherence to the "unities," so called, as is possible, and certainly the fewest number of pauses during which the curtain is down and the house lights are on, for these pauses carry the spectators back to reality and they shed the illusions created by the play.

In my opinion "The Tavern" with its entire action in two acts and only one intermission is a much more perfect art form than "The Hairy Ape" with its seven or eight scenes, each preceded by intermissions as long as the scenes, during which the audience has time to digest the absurdities offered for their edification.

GORDON'S SCOLLAY SQ. OLYMPIA

The 20th Century Revue, presenting a brilliant singing, dancing and musical offering including the "Echoes of Broadway," is the feature of the vaudeville bill at Gordon's Scollay Sq. Olympia Theatre this week. This gorgeous vaudeville offering supplements the generous double feature photoplay program which will be the rule at this theatre beginning this week.

DRAMA NOW MAJESTIC BILL

"The Unloved Wife," the new three-act comedy drama (spoken) which has been extolled by the critics everywhere as one of the most satisfying productions of the season, will be the attraction at the Majestic Theatre the coming week, commencing Monday afternoon, next, with daily matinees for ladies only, although at night everybody over the age of sixteen can go.

"The Unloved Wife" is a play of the American home, as well staged and acted, and in many respects one of the most noteworthy productions given to a local stage this season. This is the play concerning the important question "How much deception should a wife tolerate on the part of her husband?" Indeed, before the play is over, the problem has developed into the question "Has every married man a double personality?" There are sufficient thrills to fill any evening and the various mysteries are dangled temptingly enough before the eyes of all to keep the expectator guessing until just before the final curtain. Florence Edna May, the authoress, has selected an excellent cast to properly interpret the characters in the play, "John Pennington," a modern St. Elmo; "Grandpa Driscoll," his grandfather; "Grandma Bunny," his grandmother; "Mrs. Marion Courtney," a butterfly mother; "Cicely Courtney"; her daughter, "Phoebe," Cicely's younger sister; "Jim Plunkett," the boy next door; "Jim Walton" from New York, and others. A capable Broadway cast is promised.

McISAAC says that

"LADIES' NIGHT," the hilarious Al Wood farce set in a Turkish bath, continues at the Plymouth. Charles Ruggles, John Arthur Allyn King and Vivian Gosnell make a brilliant quartet of entertainers.

"SALLY," probably the biggest and best musical comedy yet produced, hasn't failed to sell out once since she has been in Boston. Colonial.

GEORGE M. COHAN, in person, appears in "The Tavern," the unusual play he concocted out of an old-fashioned melodrama. Tremont.

WILLIAM COURTENAY in "Smooth as Silk," the Willard Mack crack melodrama still current at the Selwyn, continues to demonstrate his personal popularity.

"LAST WALTZ" continues at the Wilbur for another week. This Oscar Strauss operetta contains some of the most scholarly music he has ever written.

"FOLLIES OF THE DAY," the super-burlesque, headed by Bozo Snyder, Gertrude Hayes, Jr., and a flock of others, will hold over at the Gaiety. It's the finest burlesque show of the season.

NEW DANCE ACT AT BOSTON

Danny Duggan, who has become the most popular of all ballroom dancers, will introduce something novel in the dancing line at the Boston Theatre next Week.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA

The Twentieth Century's greatest mystery act, presented by Alla Axiom, world-famous psychic, will be the headline feature on the vaudeville program at Gordon's Olympia Theatre this week.

SMILIN' THRU AT TREMONT TEMPLE

Popular demand has caused the transfer of the beautiful photo-drama, "Smilin' Through," starring Norma Talmadge, from the Park Theatre to the Tremont Theatre, where it will be presented twice daily, beginning tomorrow.

It was ordinarily scheduled to remain in the city but three weeks, but so many thousands of persons still insist on seeing the film that the transfer to Tremont Temple was necessitated.

MEIGHAN FILM AT STATE

Patrons of Loew's State Theatre will no doubt be pleased with the program as announced by the management for the coming week. Foremost on the bill will be that sterling actor, Thomas Meighan, in "The Bachelor Daddy," a picture which will no doubt help many to see the finer and truer side of life. The story is of a man who unselfishly adopts the five motherless children of his dying pal, despite the fact that his own wedding day is but a week away. He brings the children to his home to the disgust of his intended bride and to the delight of his private secretary. As the story develops blind love is awakened with surprising results. Mr. Meighan is ably supported by a well balanced cast.

ORPHEUM TO OFFER MAE MURRAY

A program of unusual attractiveness will be presented to the patrons of Loew's Orpheum Theatre during the coming week, the principal feature of which will be Mae Murray in her latest picture, "Fascination." The photoplay reveals Miss Murray in the most graceful of her roles. No other character that she has portrayed required so much emotional acting as "Fascination." Miss Murray appears as the daughter of a Spanish father and an American mother. She combines Latin fire with Yankee pep. The combination leads her to bolt from the rigid restrictions of her Spanish home to join the crowds going to the Easter Day bull fight. There she becomes fascinated by a handsome Toreador, and this fascination leads her to a series of vivid adventures. The vaudeville, always an attractive feature at this theatre, is out of the ordinary and for the first three days of the week will be headed by "At the Party," an original revue of Southern days before the war, with a septet of charming and delightful artists.

GIRLS OF '60 HAD LITTLE FREEDOM

Norma Talmadge Says Present Day Young Women Are Lucky

Girls of 1922 may be thankful that they did not live in 1860, according to Miss Norma Talmadge, star of "Smilin' Through," a play which tells a story of sixty years ago. "Smilin' Through" is the attraction at Tremont Temple this week, having been transferred there after a sensationally successful three-week run at the Park Theatre.

In this beautiful photo drama Miss Talmadge plays a dual role. First she is called upon to portray the beautiful Monyeen, a girl who lived in Civil war days. As Monyeen Miss Talmadge was compelled to wear hoop skirts and tight bodices while appearing before the camera. And it is to the hoop skirts and bodices which she objects.

"Girls of the present day should be very happy that they may wear loose fitting clothes, short skirts, sensible heels and bobbed hair. All girls would appreciate this if they had had my experience of working for several days in tightly laced bodices and the cumbersome hoop skirts worn by Monyeen in the play 'Smilin' Through.'

"Why those girls of sixty years ago had little personal freedom, I am told, and now I know from experience that they had little freedom of movement, being so terribly laced up. After playing Monyeen I revel in the comfort of modern clothing."

Dancer Now Strong Emotional Actress

Mae Murray has again shown the possibilities of the romantic rapidly-moving and highly dramatic brand of picture play. In her newest release, "Fascination" presented by Robert Z. Leonard, which will be shown at Loew's Orpheum the entire coming week, the famous star has a picture even more vital and vivid than her previous screen success, "Peacock Alley." "Fascination," written by Edmund Goulding concerns the adventures which a young Spanish-American girl experiences when she becomes fascinated by a handsome young toreador. Her plight leads to many thrilling complications. The story affords Miss Murray one of the best parts she has ever had for tensely emotional acting. The production throughout is artistic, elaborate, and has many gorgeous settings. It is a Tiffany production released by Metro. In the notable cast in support of Miss Murray are Helen Ware, Creighton Hale, Vincent Coleman, Courtenay Foote and Robert Fraser.

Meighan Read Holt's Baby Book

Between scenes for his latest picture, "The Bachelor Daddy" Thomas Meighan diligently read Holt on the care of children. In this new picture which will be shown at Loew's State Theatre the coming week, he is the custodian of five lively youngsters, and between registering for the camera and keeping the kids in a good humor, the genial star had his hands full. By the time the picture was finished, Mr. Meighan had compiled the following rules for the care of children, Holt notwithstanding: 1—A cuckoo clock is the best pacifier. 2—Never try to wash little Johnny's neck unless you have a supply of candy as a "persuader." 3—When children are taken on a Pullman car one should always have an encyclopedia handy to answer all questions. 4—When at dinner in a dining car children should be given free rein, for any attempt to cramp their style is sure to result disastrously. 5—Never have children alone on a motion picture set if you expect it to remain the same. 6—When you have guests for dinner, don't leave children alone in nursery, for there is sure to be a riot, which will not only disturb you but your friends. Lenore Joy, who was seen in "Saturday Night" plays the leading role opposite Mr. Meighan.

SELLS-FLOTO

The circus is coming to Boston. Sells-Floto (now combined with Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show) comes to the Huntington avenue circus grounds for one week, starting Monday, May 29.

Then when the big show starts, "Poodles" Hanneford, the world's greatest riding clown, and his clever family will make grandpa forget all about the wonderful riders of his youth, for none of them could compare with this remarkable "Poodles."

The Flying Nelsons, with their thrilling aerial spinning and a triple somersault, will cause a quickening of his pulse; the four troupes of Chinese circus stars, making their first tour of America, will stagger him as they perform seemingly impossible stunts far overhead. Berta Beeson, the "Ellinge of the circus," will cause wonder and surprise. The sixty-cage menagerie will be of unusual interest.

KEITH'S THEATRE

One of the best all around vaudeville bills of the season is promised for Keith's this week. Blossom Seeley, who has not been seen here for a long time, returns with a new combination of song and jazz, while Moss and Frye of "How High Is Up" fame promise more laughs than ever.

COMES BACK TO STOCK COMPANY

Anne Bronaugh Returns to Somerville Players as Leading Woman Next Week

Anne Bronaugh recognized as one of the most competent of stock leading ladies and for the past season as chief support of Fiske O'Hara returns to Somerville the coming week. Miss Bronaugh is not unfamiliar with McArdle's popular and reputable organization having been at its head for two seasons during which time she won a host of admirers in this residential city. The announcement of Miss Bronaugh's home-coming will no doubt prove welcome news to this theatre's clientele. Her re-appearance will be auspiciously signalized by the first stock presentation of Vincent Lawrence's great New York triumph, "The Ghost Between." It will be remembered Mr. Lawrence was formerly a newspaper man in Boston and in addition to "The Ghost Between" has several other notable successes to his credit. Opposite Miss Bronaugh will appear Carol Ashburn as leading man. Mr. Ashburn was also prominently identified with the Somerville Players in the past.

MOSELEY'S ON THE CHARLES

Moseley's on the Charles is now open for the season. Sheridan's popular orchestra is again supplying the music, which means perfect cadence and good tone. The hall has been renovated and improved and the management now claims the best dancing floor in New England. There will be a dance tonight, and next week there will be dancing on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. A little later in the season nightly dances will be established and special features will be announced.

BECAME SINGER

If it hadn't been for Harrison Brockbank's father, Brockbank might have been a sculptor or a painter instead of one of the leading baritones of the day. It happened that Harrison Brockbank was born in a Liverpool suburb. His early ambitions were to have been a sculptor, and as his father was one of the guarantors of one of the Liverpool theatres, Harrison combined practice with picking up pocket money by a little scene painting.

One night Harrison Brockbank was at work behind the scenes adding to a mountain landscape the waterfall which the original artist had not forseen would become a part of the plot of a popular operetta. Brockbank has always been fond of music and had taken vocal lessons, so when the manager of the touring company heard a clear baritone singing one of the favorites of his opera, he descended upon the singer to demand an explanation of his absence from the stage. Discovering it was not one of his company he offered young Brockbank a place to do and that's why he isn't a scene painter any more.

BROCKTON BOY CHOSEN B. U. FRESHMEN HEAD

Philip C. Linders of Brockton, was elected president of the freshman class of the Boston University School of Religious Education for the coming year. The other officers are as follows: vice-president, Viola G. Cripple, of Fall River; secretary, Esther Bartlett of Sunapee, N. H.; treasurer, Hugh A. White of Barnard, Vt.; advisory board, Sara J. Aicken of Louisville, Ky., Hazel Blanchard of Norwood, Wilbur H. Davies of Boston, Charles Thulin of Concord, N. H., and George Wiseman of Watertown.

CURLEY SAVES $29,000 ASPHALT CONTRACT

A saving of $29,000 in the purchase of 2,000 tons of asphalt for street construction was affected by Mayor Curley, when he awarded the contract for road asphalt to Mace Moulton, Jr., at a price of $19.38 per ton. The price in 921 was $31.33 a ton.

The saving was effected when the Mayor decided to buy all of the required material in one grade only. Instead of making smaller purchases of several other grades, which would have been much higher priced.

WILD GEESE DROP IN ON SPY POND DUCKS

The flock of several hundred wild ducks on Spy Pond, in Arlington, has been augmented by a wild goose and gander, that have taken up their abode on the pond. These two water birds are apparently right at home with the wild ducks that make their acres for these birds, and they have Middlesex Sportsman's Association home on the pond every season. The taken to their surroundings like domesticated geese.

BOZO SNYDER

That the art of pantomime furnishes the best medium for the expression of comedy is the opinion of Tommy "Bozo" Snyder, famous comedian who is known as "The Man Who Never Speaks." He is the star of "The Follies of the Day."

Tommy "Bozo" Snyder had two years experience as a speaking comedian before he decided to become a pantomimist. It was while attending a circus performance that he got the idea of adopting pantomime. He noticed one particularly clever clown whose movement and grin created a laugh.

"Ah! There's a comedian who gets his stuff across no matter how much noise there is," said "Bozo" to a friend.

Studying the methods of the clown "Bozo" noticed that he interpreted his fun by little lifts of the eyebrows, by gestures of the hands and body, and that despite the clamor and din of the of the four rings and the great audience, the clown's work registered perfectly. Words spoken in that tent would have been lost in the noise.

"That's the method I want. With noiseless comedy I can reach everybody in the house. I'll be a pantomimist after bits," resolved Bozo." He made a thorough study of pantomimes acting and developed the art quickly.

PARK OFFERS DRAMATIC FILM

"The Good Provider" Is Picture of Abundant Promise Full of Heart Throbs

A picture of abundant promise and carrying generous enthusiastic commendation is "The Good Provider," which will begin an engagement at the Park Theatre Monday. This is a photoplay made from the story by Fannie Hurst, the sterling quality of which has registered strongly with magazine readers who followed its serial presentations. Very much after the manner of this same author's "Humoresque," it deals with the family life of plain and common folks among our newer Americans.

It is the story of an over-indulgent father who gives his children every happiness he can possibly afford and is rewarded by demands upon his pocketbook that drive him almost to desperation. His children love him, but the heedlessness and optimism of youth, together with their keenly spurred ambitions, bring the devoted parent dangerously near destruction. This story is said to be well developed in a steadily mounting dramatic force to a powerful climax, in the process of which laughable situations abound. Homely and ordinary as are its personages, naturalness has been aimed at through the plainness of the plot's development. Vera Gordon and Dore Davidson are the featured players, and others in the cast are Miriam Battista, Vivienne Osborne, William (Buster) Collier Jr., John Roche, Edward Phillips, Muriel Martin, James Devine, Blanche Craig and Margaret Severn, the dancer.

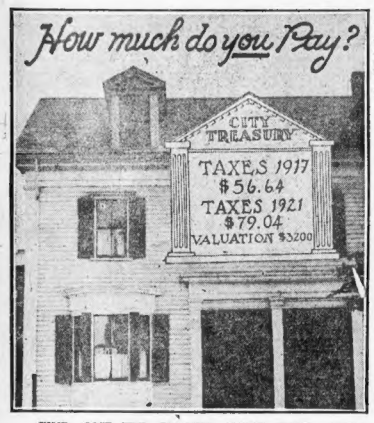
HARVARD ACTS TO PREVENT MORE LABORATORY ACCIDENTS

"OFT IN THE STILLY Night," etc! Suffolk street, Malden, is moaning over its latest raid. For the third time in three weeks dry agents have made a haul on the street. The house at No. 90 netted two stills. Joseph P. Roberts, dry agent, says that there were twenty-two on the thoroughfare.

SURROUNDING BUILDINGS WERE SHAKEN, WINDOWS WERE BLOWN IN, AND BROKEN SCIENTIFIC EQUIPMENT SCATTERED IN A DOZEN DIRECTIONS. THE BLAST QUICKLY DREW A CURIOUS CROWD.
JEFFERSON LABORATORY
CRUFTS LABORATORY

JUST AFTER THE FATAL EXPLOSION in the Harvard laboratory! The photo-diagram, showing the broken windows and scattered debris, indicates the tremendous power of the explosion in Jeffersen laboratory that killed two and severely injured seven. The concussion shattered windows and rocked buildings for a radius of several hundred yards. Pedestrians walking by were stunned by the blast. Three men were in the cellar and the laboratory above was filled with students when the explosion occurred. Only one in the cellar laboratory escaped with his life.



FIND OUT THE REASON WHEN YOUR TAXES jump! The comparative box above shows how much Mrs. Mary E. Creed, a widow, paid on this house, at No. 204 Dorchester street, South Boston, in 1917 and last year. Perhaps it has never occurred to her to find out why she paid so much more in 1921.

REMOVING TANKS OF death! One of the first moves after the dead and injured had been cared for in the Jefferson laboratory explosion at Harvard, was to remove the deadly oxygen tanks, one of which is believed to have been the cause of the accident.

SELLING MUSIC BY radio! J. Stanton Gladwin, Boston composer, whose latest composition was offered for sale by radio at the Medford Hillside station. Music publishers heard it at the other end and one accepted it.

YOU'RE WRONG! THIS is not Mr. Raffles, just William Courtenay as he looks in that thrilling play, "Smooth as Silk," at the Selwyn Theatre.

ONLY A FEW WEEKS left in which to enter! Miss Allen E. Dube of No. 88 Prospect street, Cambridge, is awarded $5 as today's Knicker Girl. She will receive a check by mail. Send your pictures to Pictorial Editor, Boston American. Enclose the negative.

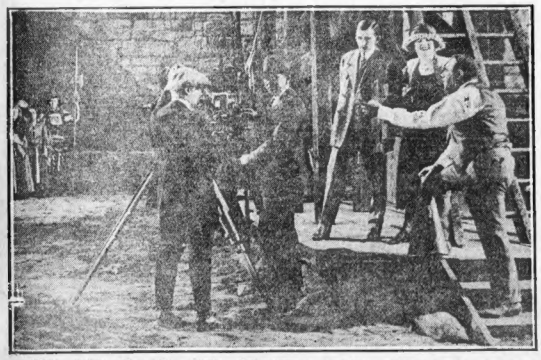
YOU CAN SEE THESE THREE CHARMERS ANY night in "Ladies' Night" at the Plymouth! The French write naughty plays. Americans write naughty plays that are nice. "Ladies' Night" is one of them. Very much in the swim are, left to right, Edna Spence, Eileen Wilson and Grace Kaber.

SOME GUNBOATS! Imagine strolling down the harbor in these new water shoes! Small paddle on the bottom of each resists water when walker pushes feet backward. Easy to operate. (Underwood.)

MARILYN MILLER, IN A charming pose from that irresistable musical hit, "Sally," wending its joyous way at the Colonial Theatre. Easy to look at and listen to.

MRS. SARAH M. HERrick, mother of Pauline Clark, who committed suicide in her Newbury street flat, has won fight for possession of property left in her daughter's apartment.

BARBARA REYNOLDS, popular Boston society girl, swatting the pill on the golf course at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Many Boston folk are sojourning there. (Keystone.)



WILL HAYS WATCHES THEM "SHOOT" A SCENE! THE FORMER POSTmaster General, now the president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, has just made his first trip to a movie studio. He had the opportunity of witnessing the making of a scene in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," starring Marion Davies in this new Cosmopolitan feature. Mr. Hays, Miss Davies and Robert Vignola, her director, are shown in the photograph.

"THE FOOD WAS ROTTEN, BUT LOOK AT WHAT THEY TRY TO FRIGHTEN us with!" These are the sentiments of Dore Davison as the loveable character in "The Good Provider," Fannie Hurst's new screen play that comes to the Park Theatre Monday. Mr. Davison and Vera Gordon of "Humoresque" fame are featured. The fantastical dancer (Margaret Severn) doesn't impress the old folk, even if it is a part of the cafe show in a fashionable hostelry. It's a Cosmopolitan production. Nuff ced!

WOMEN VOTERS GUESTS OF MRS. HEARST

New York, May 20.—The Women's Democratic Club, oldest and largest feminine political organization in the State, was entertained by Mrs. William Randolph Hearst at her home on Riverside Drive.

The reception was held in honor of the newly-elected officers of the club, and in lieu of the first regular meeting following election. Many of the guests are nationally prominent; all are active in party politics, and over teacups the beginnings of plans were discussed which may build history during the coming year.

Mrs. John F. Hylan, wife of the Mayor; her daughter, Mrs. John F. Sinnott; Mrs. Grover Whalen; Mrs. Royal S. Copeland and her mother, Mrs. M. Friedstadt of Chicago, stood in the receiving line.

With them were Mrs. John Enos Quinn, president of the club; Mrs. Edward C. Hackney, Mrs. Ellis O'Gorman Stanton, Mrs. M. O'Connell, Mrs. John Dunphy, and Mrs. Emmett Digney, vice-presidents; Mrs. P. J. Garrett, historian; Mrs. John E. Thompson, treasurer; Mrs. John Robert Miller, chairman of the publicity committee; Miss Alice C. Kraft, corresponding secretary; Miss Martha Burns, recording secretary.

Mrs. Hearst stated that such party country's good. The masculine brain separate woman's organization is most necessary for the good of the country as a whole.

"Women must have a part in politics, but not a part removed from that which men have," she said.

"Men and women working together are best able to work for the country's good. The masculin brain supplements the feminine brain; man's judgment balances woman's heart. It is so in managing a home and the country is a collection of homes.

"There must be no separate woman's party for the good of the whole. But we women must keep up our interest, which I believe to be deeper than the interest of men because it is with us always—not only around voting time."

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Vincent Club Girl Becomes Bride Today in Brookline

By BETTY ALDEN

ONE of the few May brides is Miss Ruth Putnam, whose marriage to William Walker Claflin at 4 o'clock this afternoon will draw a fashionable throng to the First Parish Church in Brookline.

The bride, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. George J. Putnam of Boylston street, Brookline, made her debut about three years ago, and ever since that time she has taken an active part in the affairs of her coterie. A member of the Vincent Club, she was one of the clever girls comprising the octette, one of the popular features of "Now and Then," the Vincent show given last month.

Miss Lucy Currier is to attend the bride as maid of honor, the group of bridesmaids including Miss May Bremer and Mrs. George Endicott Putnam (Sarah Sherburne) of Boston and the Misses Louise and Phyllis Potten of Pittsburgh. The two little nieces of the bride, Amelie and Helene Sigourney, are to be the flower girls.

The bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adams D. Claflin (Agnes Walker) of Newton Centre, has chosen George Endicott Putnam as best man. Of the young men serving as ushers are Messrs. Henry L. Sigourney, brother-in-law of the bride, whose sister, Miss Mary Sigourney, was married on Tuesday to Lieutenant Commander Rochfort Y. Loveband of the British Royal Navy; Robert G. Stone of Brookline, George E. Kunhardt, Jr., of Mt. Vernon street, George Helm and Norman H. White, Jr., of Cambridge, also the Messrs. Henry H. Marshall, Paul E. Stevenson and John R. Craig, Jr., all of New York.

MISS RUTH PUTNAM

Miss Ruth Putnam, whose marriage to William Walker Claflin takes place at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the First Parish Church of Brookline. Miss Putnam, a member of the Sewing Circle and the Vincent Club, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Putnam. (Photo by Bachrach)

The bride, who will be given away by her father, George J. Putnam, a Harvard '97 man, will wear a gown of white satin, trimmed with old family lace, with lace sleeves and a court train falling from the shoulders with lace on top. The long flowing tulle veil will be caught with a wreath of orange blossoms, and the bridal bouquet will be comprised of lilies.

Miss Lucy Currier, the maid of honor, will wear a dainty frock of orange taffeta combined with silver, the skirt being of ankle length and very full. She will wear a hat of silver, as will the bridesmaids, whose gowns are of gray taffeta, also combined with silver. All will carry bouquets of orange snapdragons and blue larkspur.

Following the ceremony, at which the Rev. Abbot Peterson will officiate, there will be a reception at the home of the bride's parents on Boylston street, Brookline.

A WEEK from today will find society folk in somewhat of a predicament, for two important ceremonials are scheduled to take place on that date, and both, unfortunately, come but an hour apart.

Miss Barbara Hall, daughter of the R. Linzee Halls, has selected 3 o'clock as her wedding hour, when, at Grace Episcopal Church in Medford, she will become the bride of Charles Edward Thayer 2d of Brookline. The prospective bride, who belongs to the 1918 Sewing Circle, will have her sister, Miss Mary Hall, as maid of honor. Her bridesmaids will be the Misses Marjorie Kennard, Elizabeth Bigelow, Dorothy Batchelder and Ruth Williams, the latter a cousin of Miss Hall's.

The engagement of Barbara Hall to Mr. Thayer was announced about a year and a half ago. Mr. Thayer, a Harvard '19 man, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Thayer of Stearns road, Brookline. Following their wedding journey, the couple plan to make their home in Hingham.

Saturday's second wedding is that of Miss Susan Dove Lee and Thornton Kirkland Ware, who will be married at 4 o'clock in the First Church at Chestnut Hill. Miss Lee, who is a member of the Sewing Circle and the Vincent Club, is the daughter of the Francis W. Lees of Chestnut Hill. Her fiance, a Harvard Law School graduate with the class of '10, resides in Fitchburg, where he will take his bride to live.

ROSLINDALE TO NAME PLAYGROUND FOR HERO

The city playground at Washington and Florence streets, Roslindale, will be dedicated in honor of the late Sergt. Frank D. Healy at appropriate services tomorrow afternoon, which will be in charge of James C. Shea Post, American Legion, and John J. Williams Council, Knights of Columbus. Lieut.-Gov. Fuller and Mayor Curley are scheduled to speak. Sergt. Healy, a Roslindale boy, was killed while serving with the 55th Coast Artillery in the Argonne.

Are you a winner?

If you aren't it's your own fault. All we ask are snappy NIFTY NIFTIES and you can win often if you send them in. We don't want stale jokes like "What would a chicken say if its mother laid an orange?" or "Why does a chicken cross the street?" et cetera. Send in real NIFTIES and then you'll be a winner.

ROCKLAND DRUG RAID MADE BY BOSTON AGENTS

Rockland, May 20.—Boston officers of the narcotic squad and chief of police J. L. Dwyer raided a Chinese laundry in the Soule block and confiscated a complete opium layout. Lee Tom, the proprietor was arrested and will be arraigned in the Abington court.

LOSES ALL ON PONIES; DIVES UNDER TRAIN

New York, May 20.—Charles E. Cash, once a betting commissioner, today tipped his barber to "lay off the ponies" and and threw himself under the wheels of a subway express.

Hundreds of passengers saw Cash make his fatal leap at Lenox avenue, and 110th street, and some women fainted. Five cars passed over his body. Tucked under the band of his straw hat was a note which said, "Please notify Mrs. McLaughlin I'm dead," and gave her telephone number.

Cash was said to have inherited a fortune and to have lost it all on the races. After being shaved he said to his barber:

"If you ever play the horses take a tip from me and don't. Leave them alone. I lost my wife, my home and $100,000 trying to beat them. So long. "Remember my tip."

Another employe of the shop said Cash told him a few days ago:

"I'm disgusted with life. I wish I could drop dead. For the first time in 22 years I didn't go to the Saratoga races last Summer. I think I'll end it all."

5-TON GRINDSTONE'S FALL KILLS WORKER

Pittsburgh, May 20.—George Bier was killed and George A. Remler severely injured today when a five-ton grindstone in the plant of the Marshall Foundry Company toppled over on them.

'Too Much Love,' Basis of Divorce Asked by Prima Donna

New York, May 19.—A legal separation on the grounds of too much love!

This is the novel reason given by Lucille Harrison, well-known prima donna of the Provincial Circuits, suing for separation from her husband, Samuel F. Fried, a salesman.

The captivating brunette said with a gesture of despair:

"The whole trouble with my husband and with our married life was that he loved me too much. He was positively insane about me. His overpowering love for me made me miserable. It ruined his disposition. I grew to be afraid of him."

POPPY DRIVE WILL OPEN MONDAY

Poppy Drive will be opened by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Monday morning. The money collected will be used for soldier relief work and for the establishment of a service bureau in connection with the Veterans' Bureau.

The drive will last until the evening of May 31, and will cover the entire state. Touring cars to aid in the drive will be furnished by scores of owners.

The Army and Navy Club of Boston, the Community Service, many girls and others have volunteered to sell poppies on May 26 and 27.

Those two days will be the big ones of the drive when the people of Massachusetts will have an opportunity to contribute to the cause.

Fraternal orders, including the Elks, Knights of Columbus, Masons, Odd Fellows and Order of Moose will aid.

STEVE LATZO TAKES PAUL DOYLE'S PLACE AGAINST SIEGAL

SHIFT ADDS INTEREST TO ARENA A. C. SHOW

By JACK CONWAY

Steve Latzo, Wilkesbarre, Pa. welterweight, will take the place of Paul Doyle against Nate Siegal at the Arena A. C.'s big all-star show next Monday night. Doyle was obliged to withdraw from the match on account of an injured leg. The Arena club then got busy and secured the services of Latzo.

He should make a whale of a substitute. It will be remembered that Latzo defeated Siegal at Braves Field last year. His aggressive style of fighting and heavy punching was too much for Nate, who was then the New England welterweight boss.

Latzo is in the best of condition as he was training for a bout with Mickey Walker, which was to be staged at Wilkesbarre last night. The affair was called off following Walker's jam with the Massachusetts Boxing Commission over his poor bout with Harlem Eddie Kelly at Holyoke. Latzo has continued his training and will be in the best of condition for Monday night's meeting.

Jack Ferry to Arrive in Boston Sunday

Jack Ferry has notified the Arena management he will arrive in Boston tomorrow morning. The Pittsburgh warrior intends to force the issue in an attempt to knock Shevlin out.

We must confess we admire Ferry's confidence, but we have great respect for Shevlin's brilliancy as a boxer. Eddie is not only a natural boxer, but can also fight hard when pressed by an opponent. Furthermore, he has more brains than the average fighter; in fact, there are few men in business who are as quick thinkers as Dartmouth's boxing director.

Then there will be the ten-round bout between Jack McClellan and Pat McCarthy and the ten-session affair in which Jimmy Armato White will have Sammy Terria as an opponent.

The rush for reservations for this popular-price show continues at the office of the Arena A. C. at No. 39 Court street.

To accommodate the out-of-town fans the downtown office will remain open until 8:30 this evening.

St. Louis Bantamweight to Invade Boston

Patsy Flanagan of St. Louis, one of the best bantamweights in the middle West, is planning to invade Boston. While in this sector of the land of the brave, he'll operate under the banner of Jack Smith of Medford. Flanagan has scored victories over Joe Dillon of New York, Bobby Hughes of New Orleans, Kewpie Callender of Minneapolis, Red Watson of New Orleans, Stanley Everett of Peoria, Eddie O'Dowd and a flock of other fast steppers.

Midget Smith, Pal Moore and Jack Sharkey have turned down tempting offers to meet Flanagan.

Elks to Stage Amateur Show Next Wednesday

George Freeman called at the sporting department with the glad tidings that the Boston Lodge of Elks will stage an amateur show next Wednesday night. There will be bouts at 112, 126, 135 and 147 pounds. Entries should be forwarded to George Dennis, No. 10 Somerset street.

Abe Friedman Goes to Freddy Welsh's Camp

Abe Friedman, New England bantam champion, has left for Freddie Welsh's Health Farm, at Long Hill, Summit, N. J., to start in training for a couple of matches that his manager, Eddie Mack, has arranged for him. They want Abe in Providence, R. I., to box Young Montreal, at an open air show there early in June, and Leo McMahon wants to meet Midget Smith, at the Dykeman Oval, New York, on the night of June 12.

In the meanwhile Eddie Mack stands ready to post $500 with any newspaper man in Boston for Friedman to box Danny Edwards, the colored bantamweight champion, at 120 pounds ringside. Abe does not want to offer alibis, as they are not in order after losing, but he knows he was not in prime shape for his last tussle with Edwards and if given a chance at the sterling colored bantamweight feels he will make good. If he doesn't he will turn his share of the receipts over to the wounded soldiers.

Johnny Clinton, who won the New England lightweight championship from Johnny Shugrue of Worcester and gave him a chance to redeem it in six weeks, which he failed to do, is in shape and ready to meet any lightweight in the country. Shugrue just won a decision over Johnny Dundee at Worcester. In 20 pounds with Clinton he did not hit the New England title holder five punches, according to Eddie Mack. There is an old saying, "uneasy lies the head that wears the crown" but not so with Johnny, who is ready and willing at all times to step in the ring with any real contender.

Amateur Baseball Stars Asked to Send in Pictures

CALZA SIGNS TO MEET WLADEK ZBYSZKO

George Calza, sensational Italian heavyweight champion, has been matched to battle Wladek Zbyszko, mighty son of Poland, in a finish wrestling match at the Boston Arena next Friday night under the direction of the Old Howard management.

This match was closed following Calza's victory over Merin Plestina in a handicap match. Plestina, considered by many experts as the world's greatest grappler, was unable to throw Calza after 90 minutes of furious grappling.

Zbyszko is a former world's wrestling champion. On two different occasions he has defeated Stanzler Lewis, present title holder.

Last winter at Madison Square Garden, New York, Zbyszko won over Joe Stecker, which virtually made him the runner-up for the championship. At the time Stanislaus Zbyszko held the title and so Wladek could not very well appear in the role of a challenger against his own brother.

Zbyszko will arrive in Boston Sunday and will establish training quarters in a gym in Roxbury.

Calza will do his training at the Tyler street gym.

Cyclone Ross of New York will oppose Orest Vadalya, Italian heavyweight, in the semi-final. Charley Metro, Albanian Tiger, will battle Martin Ludecko, the Panama champion.

All matches will be to a positive finish.

Reservations may be secured at the Old Howard.

PITTSBURGH CLUB GETS CALL DOWN FROM LANDIS

Chicago, May 20.—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis sent word to the Pittsburgh club that baseball rules forbid Pittsburgh assigning Clarence Jonnard, catcher, to the Memphis club of the Southern League.

Jonnard was drafted last fall by Pittsburgh from Nashville. This spring he was sent to Memphis, a club competing with Nashville. Nashville protested to Commissioner Landis.

Pittsburgh must recall Jonnard, Landis ruled, or offer him to Nashville.

CALZA DOWNS WESTERN MARVEL AT FITCHBURG

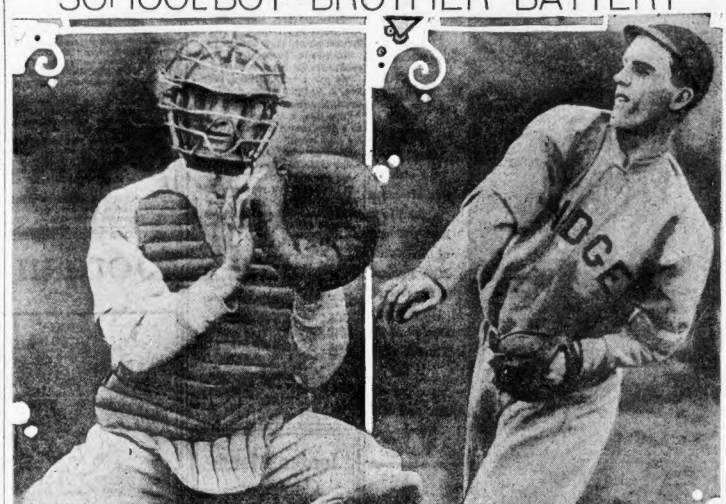
Fitchburg, May 20.—George Calza added another to his long string of victories last night, defeating the Western Masked Marvel in straight falls. The Bostonian took the first in thirty-one minutes and thirty-eight seconds, and the second in twenty-eight minutes and thirty-nine seconds, both by a body scissors and toe hold.

The Marvel unmasked at the close of the bout and announced that he was Al Fandell of Chicago. He had great respect for Calza, predicting the Italian would be would's champion with a little more experience.

Newton League Will Open

Newton's Twilight League, consisting of six teams, will open its season on Monday evening.

SCHOOLBOY BROTHER BATTERY



JOE HAYES AND BILL HAYES

Rindge Technical nine boasts the only brother battery in this section. Joe and brother Bill Hayes make up the combination that has won many games for the Cantab aggregation.

Joe does the pitching, with brother Bill on the receiving end. This combination has been a successful one for Coach Lincoln in the Suburban League quarrel. Both played baseball for the same team last year, but failed to gain the prominence as has been the story this Spring.

Last year's experience in the league has given this pair the Indian sign on the leading battery in this circuit, resulting in their scoring many wins.

Only Three Assists by Dodgers in Full Game

St. Louis, Mo., May 20.—Brooklyn made only three assists in the game with the Cardinals yesterday. That is close to being a record for major league baseball. Hal Janvrin at second base had two and a pitcher the other. Of the 27 putouts, 14 were made by the outfielders and only two by Schmandt, the first baseman.

SIEGAL KNOCKS OUT RUSSELL IN FOURTH

Woonsocket, R. I., May 20.—Ted Russell failed to show a thing against Nate Siegal in their scheduled ten-round bout here, the invader knocking him out in the fourth round.

Siegal toyed with his opponent in the opening session, and in the third sent him down twice for the count of nine. In the fourth Russell went to his knees and took the count, being unable to stay with Siegal.

The curtain-raiser between Eddie Ryan of Woonsocket and Bill Turner of Pawtucket, substituting for Young Genoa, who failed to appear, proved the best of the evening. The latter, who had been digging ditches all day, entered the ring on a moment's notice, put up a whale of a fight and earned a draw.

Boston Orioles Want Game

The Boston Orioles would like a game for Sunday, May 21, away from home with any fast semi-pro team. Randolph Town Team, Millstreams or Malden K. of C. preferred. Write to F. J. O'Connor, No. 538 East Fourth street, South Boston, or call South Boston 1325-W.

GAME AT NORTH CAMBRIDGE SUNDAY

With a first-class attraction as a bait, Manager Dan Leahy of North Cambridge Council, expects to have a capacity crowd at Russell Field tomorrow. As was announced, the J. J. Cofnelly club of Roxbury, formerly the Notre Dames, will be the North Cambridge team's opponent.

Both teams are members of the Greater Boston Twilight League, and are playing the regular league game, postponed from Thursday evening.

Leahy is without the services of his sensational trio of schoolboys, Warren "Pat" Cote, shortstop; "Punk" Gautreau, second baseman, and "Sonny" Foley, third baseman.

However, Jay O'Connor, one of the hardest hitters that ever played at Holy Cross, and "Tubber" White are capable substitutes.

Jimmy Fitzgerald and "Gaspipe" Sullivan will do the battery work for North Cambridge, while "Binga" King and "Huckale" Brooks will work for the Connelly club.

The game will start at 3 p. m.

EDITH SIGOURNEY ON TRIP WITH MRS. MALLORY

New York, May 20.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, women's tennis champion of the United States, will sail today on board the Cedric for England, where she will compete in the British tennis championship at Wimbledon, starting June 26.

The American champion will also compete in the French championship match, in which it is expected she will meet Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French title holder, who made such a disastrous trip to this country last season.

Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston, accompanied Mrs. Mallory and will compete in the same tourneys.

MARTIN AND SHARKEY IN THEIR RING BOUT TODAY

Brooklyn, May 20.—Pepp Martin and Jack Sharkey will meet this afternoon in a battle at Ebbets Field, which should produce a challenger for Johnny Kilbane's crown which he will be unable to ignore.

Guess Mitch Pulled Off Some Trade, Eh! Wot?

Last Winter the Braves induced the Reds to take big Jack Scott and to give them Larry Kopf, the shortstop, and Rube Marquard for him. Any time you get two for one you get the best of it. The Braves got 10,000 per cent. the best of it for Rube is good and Kopf is a humdinger, but Jack Scott is a has been. Yesterday the Reds gave Big John his unconditional release. Thus endeth the chapter. Incidentally the Reds claimed that the Braves "bunked" them and that they knew Scott had a lame arm when traded. Of course that wasn't so for Jack pitched in the post-season games last Fall.

B. U. ELECTS WOODWARD CAPTAIN

Franklin G. Woodward of Marlboro, a sophomore at the College of Business Administration, was re-elected captain of the Boston University track team for the coming year.

Woodward has been prominent in athletics and college activities since he entered the college in 1920. He was graduated from the Marlboro High School in 1919 and spent one year at Bates College before coming to Boston University. He is a member of the House of Representatives, the student government association, and is sergeant in the R. O. T. C. unit.

Woodward won his major letter in track last year and is this year a member of the varsity rifle team.

He is a member of Chi Sigma Chi fraternity. He was prominent in the student campaign for the endowment fund.

HARVARD BOATS IN RACES AT NEW HAVEN

The 150-pound Harvard varsity crew will meet the Princeton, Cornell and Yale crews at New Haven this afternoon. Also the champion junior class crew of Harvard.

This is the first time that varsity crews of the three colleges have met. Under the direction of Coach William Haines the Harvard 150-pound crew has shown remarkable development this spring and should give a good account of itself on the New Haven course.

With "Kit" Carson, who steered the first varsity in the Penn race at the tiller the Crimson middleweights are sure to do well.

The crew representing the class of 1923 which won the rowing championship of the class crews from the sophomores last week will battle with the best Ell class eight.

The Harvard crews row as follows:

RED SOX SEND RING TO FITCHBURG CLUB

Fitchburg, May 19.—Tommy Ring, infielder of the Red Sox, has been secured from Manager Duffy of the Red Sox and will be seen today in the game with New Haven at the Eastern League grounds.

Demo, an infielder from Little Rock, Ark., who hails from Fall River, will hold down second sack. He is said to be a fast fielder and a good hitter.

Manager Mack is confident these changes will strengthen the team.

MILE RUN MAY DECIDE COLLEGE TITLE MEET

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Worcester, May 20.—Can Louis Welsh, Boston College freshman, outrun Elmer Sanborn, Tech senior, in the New England Intercollegiate one-mile run?

The correct answer to that question will decide which of the rival Greater Boston institutions will hold the New England Intercollegiate cup for the year 1922.

Never have two teams come through the trial events and qualifying rounds more evenly matched in possible points. Yesterday Tech qualified seventeen men and B. C. twelve, but with one or two exceptions the Maroon and Gold qualifiers appeared the stronger and seemed more likely to score the higher places.

Tech, with a seemingly sure three points in the two-mile run to add to those expected of its seventeen qualifiers, just about squares B. C. in probable points, and by so doing makes the one-mile duel between Welsh of B. C. and Sanborn of Tech, the balancing event of the meet.

Race Should Prove Wonder for Candidates Are Equal

The race should prove a wonder. The Tech and B. C. candidates hold equal favor in the wagering. Sanborn of the Engineers is a plugger a chap who does all his running from the sound of the starter's gun. Welsh is a runner who makes his counting bid in the last two or three hundred yards.

Sanborn will try to "kill him off" by setting the hottest kind of a pace. Welsh will seek to keep close to his heels and at the same time conserve sufficient strength to uncork the counting burst at the finish.

Carter of Brown Will Not Run in the Furlong

Carter of Brown, who is nursing a tendon, decided to confine his efforts to the century dash and so will not run in the furlong; Blodgett of Tech failed to start in the high hurdles, and thus the place allotted him in the table is open to some other candidate.

Except for those two, things went swimmingly with the Boston American selections until the last two numbers on the preliminary program—the pole vault and the discus.

In the former both Sheldon and Stearns of Tech were shut out, while in the latter, Tootle of Bowdoin and Nimick of Tech failed to make the grade required of qualifiers. Nimick also failed in the shot put, leaving another odd point to be picked up by some rival strong boy.

Tech rooters were rather disappointed in the preliminary showing of the team, for in addition to the failures of Nimick, Sheldon and Stearns the Tech high jumper, Morrill did not qualify for that event. But despite such happenings the Engineers had other men forcing their way into the semi-finals, and finals, and it is possible that these will make up for the seemingly lost points.

Neither Caffery, nor Drugan Comes Through for B. C.

B. C. also had a few slipups. Caffery, although not granted a place in the Boston American table, was expected by his rooters to figure in the half mile, and Drugan was looked upon as a possible placer in the discus and broad jump. Neither came through with qualifying performances.

Although all track followers attending the New England meet consider B. C., and Tech as the only possibilities in the championship fight, it might be well to note that Williams and Brown have qualified ten men each, and Brown has some distance runners capable of figuring in the events in which there were no trials.

Bowdoin has nine qualifiers, Wesleyan and Middlebury six each, Holy Cross five, Maine, New Hampshire and Amherst four each, Bates and Mass. Aggies three each, Worcester Polytech, Vermont and Boston University two each, and Colby one, Rhode Island State, Trinity and Tufts were the only colleges failing to figure in the trial performances.

No Exceptional Marks Because of Heavy Track

A high wind and the heaviness of the track, due to the recent rain, prevented the registering of exceptional marks. Under the conditions Cook's high hurdle trial in 16 seconds. Driscoll's quarter-mile trial in 51 seconds and Chittick's low hurdle trial in 27 seconds were worthy of mention.

GREEN GOLFERS PLAY TWO AT BRAE BURN

Hanover, N. H., May 20.—Dartmouth's undefeated golf team met here yesterday for a five day trip, opening with matches in Boston today with Boston University in the morning and Harvard in the afternoon on the Brae-Burn course. Six men are on the trip, Captain Boyd, Gunnison, Hanlon, McKee, Rice and Sheehy.

The team meets the Yale golfers Monday at New Haven and Princeton Tuesday at Lido, N. J.

Joan Wethered Wins British Golf Title

By Universal Service

London, May 20.—Joan Wethered easily won the British ladies' golf championship at Sandwich from Cecil Leitch by a margin of nine up and seven to play.

She is renowned as one of the foremost woman golf players in the country, but last year she was beaten in the finals by the champion whom she dethroned today.

HALL MAY GIVE NEWTON LOTS OF WORRY

The poor showing of the leaders of the Suburban League has somewhat dimmed the interest in today's baseball contests. Newton High has been the only nine to keep up its winning ways, and has shown sufficient class in its recent starts to insure winning the Suburban League fight.

The Garden City aggregation meets Everett on the latter's grounds today, and should "Rube" Hall pitch to the Newton batters as he has in his early games, it is doubtful what the outcome will be.

Coach Dickinson is taking few chances with his winning combination this year and will send Whitmore to the mound. Jack Leahy, who shut out the Everet band last year with a no-hit, no-run contest, batted on Wednesday and will view the game from the bench.

Somerville High has no soft assignment in winning over Malden on the Malden Athletic Field. Danny McFayden will be used by Coach Ayer to hold Somerville in the second berth. Danny experienced his first defeat since joining this league at the hands of Newton Saturday. After the week's rest he should be in condition to trim the Malden batters.

Medford has much to gain in winning over Cambridge Latin, for a win wil lgive the charges of Coach Mansfield a new lease of life in this hectic fight.

The championship of Norfolk County will be decided when Dedham and Norwood meet at Norwood this afternoon. Andrew Carroll, the best pitcher that has come to the front in many years in this district, will pitch for Dedham.

BATTERING BABE, BANISHED BAMBINO, BACK IN BASEBALL

NOW WATCH MY SMOKE SAYS KING OF SWAT

New York, May 20.—"That's the best news I've got in many a year," declared Babe Ruth today when he was handed Judge Landis' telegram informing him that his suspension for participating in a barnstorming tour last Fall had been lifted.

"Now watch my smoke."

Ruth was as delighted as a child with a new toy and immediately hustled out to the Polo Grounds to don the uniform he has been unable to wear since the opening of the season except in morning practice.

Miller Huggins manager of the Yanks, said he would play Ruth in left field and Bob Meusel, the other reinstated exile, in right field against the St. Louis Browns today. Lawton Witt, recently obtained from the Philadelphia Athletics, will fill the remaining outfield berth.

The town is really mad over the whole business. That is, cuckoo over the return of Babe. At the Yankee offices special cope turned back bunches of fans. Their refrain was "No more tickets for sale. You might get some in the bleachers at the Polo Grounds tomorrow afternoon though."

No need to tell the fans that they'd have to get there early.

The decrease in attendance at American League games at the Polo Grounds this season has been officially estimated at 40 per cent. The absence of Babe Ruth is considered primarily responsible. Other cities which the Yanks visited also suffered by the suspension of the greatest box-office attraction in the game.

Babe's return with the St. Louis Browns invading Yankee land, after being as close to Hugging Han as fleece-lined underwear for weeks, together with the presence in the visitors of Kenneth Williams, manufacturer of eleven home runs, will make it probably the biggest day in many years in baseball.

Incidentally, the fact the Yankees are leading the league, despite the absence of their two leading sluggers, has upset the early season dope in surprising fashion. Most of the prognosticators had the Yankees tumbling around like a bunch of highly eccentric circus clowns.

Ruth and Meusel are both in fine condition to jump in and do their stuff. The fans expect, of course, that they will step right out and send the Yanks galloping along the victory turnpike.

ANDOVER FAVORITE IN STADIUM MEET

By FRED C. LANE.

Two hundred and two athletes, representing twenty-three high and prep schools of New England, will take part in the thirty-sixth annual Harvard Interscholastic track meet at the Stadium today. The Harvard freshmen and Princeton freshmen will combat shortly after the point scoring of the schoolboys has ceased, making a double attraction for the day.

Andover Academy, with an entry list of 30 athletes, is out to repeat its win of last year. The Blue team is exceptionally strong in the field events, especially the discus and javelin, which will give them the edge, though Exeter, their arch rival, will be a close second and may upset the predictions.

Huntington School and Worcester Academy will have their full strength for this affair. Bill Symmes in the dash and Gal Robinson in the high jump will surely score for the Black and Red.

Captain "Toney" Parker of the Black Boy school is down for the half mile, which should be some race when Al O'Neil, the Dorchester lad, wearing the colors of Exeter, gets into action.

This pair staged a thrilling race in the relay games at the Penn carnival, and both should show their heels to the many contestants.

Dave White of Cushing will have his first real test for honors in the broad jump when he competes against Boston of Exeter. The Exonian has a mark 23 feet in his recent efforts and will set up a new record for this meet should he jump that distance today. White in a practice leap has done 22 feet 9 inches. The Commerce boy, in competing at the Boston College Interscholastic meet did 22 feet 8½ inches, on a wet field. Both are sort of footing this event should see for interest with the half-mile run.

There are 13 events on the day's program, including the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes, half mile, shot put, hammer throw discus, javelin high jump, broad jump, 120-yard high hurdles and 220-yard low hurdles. The point scoring will be 5 points for first place, 3 for second, 2 for third and 1 for fourth.

A dinner will be served at the Varsity Club to competing athletes at 6 o'clock at which the Boston Athletic Association cup, Harvard Athletic Association shield and medals will be presented to the winning members and teams.

CHESTNUT HILL HORSE SHOW MAY 30

The annual Chestnut Hill Horse Show will be held on May 30. The show will open at 10 o'clock on the grounds of the Longwood Cricket Club. There are seven classes including three pony classes for children only.

The other classes are for saddle horses, harness, combination saddle and harness, jumpers, hunters, and one division for polo ponies. Each of the classes, however, includes several minor divisions, 37 in all, so that those attending will find plenty to take up their attention.

Cups from the Richard M. Saltonstall Memorial Fund will be awarded for first place in each of six divisions in the pony class. The Montgomery Rollins Memorial Cup is offered for saddle horses, to be won three times by the same owner for permanent possession, and the Norn Saltonstall Cup, with similar rules in force, is up for competition by the hunters.

ATHLETES HIGH IN STUDY AT DARTMOUTH

Hanover, N. H., May 20.—Donald R. Moore of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Ferdinand W. Steinhilber of Worcester, Mass., have been awarded Merrill Allen Gallacher Memorial scholarships at Dartmouth College, according to announcement of the administration. The scholarships, among the most important at Dartmouth, are based on a gift of $25,000 by Mrs. Kate M. Morse of Boston and are awarded annually to two undergraduates on the same basis as the Rhodes scholarships. Moore has played on both the varsity football and basketball teams for two years, while Steinhilber, a transfer from Holy Cross who did not become eligible until this season, is the leading pitcher on the Green baseball squad.

MIDDLESEX EIGHT ROWS HARVARD FRESHMEN

Middlesex will have its only eight-oared crew race of the season Wednesday, opposing the Harvard freshmen on the Charles.

Chelsea Has Two Games

Chelsea, K. of C. will visit Maynard today and will entertain the Tanner team of South Boston at the Parker street grounds tomorrow.

FELSCH LAWYER CALLS JUDGE LANDIS

Milwaukee, Wis., May 20—Judge Kenesaw M. Landis may be called as a witness today in the Circuit Court here.

Raymond Cannon, attorney for Oscar ("Happy") Felsch, former White Sox fielder, indicated today that he will seek to question Judge Landis on what connection he had with National and American League magnates following the 1919 World Series scandal and previous to his employment as supreme baseball arbiter.

The hearing tomorrow is the outcome of an affidavit filed by Felsch in an effort to force Charles A. Comiskey and Louis Comiskey, owners of the White Sox, to show causes why they should not be questioned regarding alleged dishonest games in 1917.

Felsch alleges that discrimination was shown him in the 1919 expenses and seeks money said to be due him prior to the 1919 shake-up.

GREB AND TUNNEY ARE IN TRAINING FOR BOUT

New York, May 20.—Harry Greb and Gene Tunney are on their last lap of training for their fifteen-round light heavyweight championship encounter next Tuesday night at Madison Square Garden.

Tunney will stop work tomorrow, but will not leave Red Bank, N. J., where he is getting in shape for the fray, until the day of the event, when he weighs in at 2 o'clock that afternoon.

Greb announces that he will do some light work on Monday and some light exercise before he goes on the scales.

TECH CREW STARS IN COLUMBIA REGATTA

New York, May 20.—Pennsylvania, Columbia and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will compete in the varsity eight-oared race, feature event of a regatta to be held under the auspices of Columbia University today.

FIGHT RESULTS.

At Fall River—Johnny Darcy knocked out Williams Lould, one round.

INDIANS OPEN SERIES WITH RED SOX

By NICK FLATLEY.

Tris Speaker and his Cleveland Indians open a series with the Red Sox today, and strange though it may seem, there's no reason to believe that the native entry cannot get an even break at the very outside. It "didn't useter" be that way, but this is a different spring.

The former champions, after a grand start, hit the chutes and have been diving rapidly toward the sink. Just now they are well down in the second division, and will have to improve their baseball a lot to emerge therefrom.

It's likely to be quite a day at the ball yard. Stuffy Mcinnis, favorite here for many a moon, comes back as an Indian, and it will be interesting to watch him perform against his own gang. Stuffy has been one of the heroes of what Cleveland joy there has been this Spring, and will undoubtedly put all he has in his efforts before the native crowd.

Bill Piercy escapes today from the Landis banishment that was part of the Ruth hubbub, and will pitch for the Red Sox. At least that's the official announcement. Bill has been training faithfully, and claims that the wing is O. K. The young man has a lot of pitching ability and never will find a better spot to develop it.

GAME AT WOOD ISLAND PARK DIAMOND SUNDAY

The East Boston Catholic Literary Association will oppose the Boston Council, K. of C., at Wood Island Park, Sunday afternoon at 3 p. m.

Boston Council has one of the best K. of C. nines in the State. Last season Jimmy Cassel was their pitcher and they are trying hard to get him to pitch tomorrow.

VILLANOVA IN RETURN GAME AT HEIGHTS

Boston College is out to make it three straight for the week this afternoon, when the Eagles play their second game with Villanova. In the first meeting, B. C., with Patten twirling, easily defeated the Villanovans.

Coach Henriksen will start Vargus, the speedy southpaw, this afternoon. Vargus has two wins to his credit out of three starts, and ought not be overworked in subduing the visitors.

Ted Palmer, who has been out all week with a lame leg, will be back in the game. Whalen, who has been playing Ted's position at short, will go to second base, relieving Cody.

Wilson will play left field in place of Tommy Phillips, who has been shifted to third. Phillips played a fine game against Providence in his new position, and seems to be versatile enough to fill Sonny Foley's shoes.

BABE ADAMS CELEBRATES HIS FORTIETH BIRTHDAY

"Babe" Adams gave a party to the Pittsburgh and New York teams and to his immediate friends at the Pittsburgh clubhouse Thursday, celebrating his 40th birthday. Adams has been pitching professional baseball for 18 years, fourteen of which have been spent with the Pittsburgh club.

Middlesex Profs Win

The faculty members of Middlesex School defeated their Milton Academy opponents in a thrilling baseball game at North Concord yesterday, 16 to 11.

BIKE RACERS GET GOING AT REVERE

Bicycle competition for the season of 1922 will be ushered in tonight at the Revere cycle track.

Topping the program is the 25 mile motor paced race bringing together George Wiley of Syracuse, Vincent Madonna of Providence and Lucien Miuel of France. Professional, amateur and novice sprints will make up the rest of the card.

DARTMOUTH OUT TO HOLD N. E. NET TITLE

Hanover, N. H., May 20—The makeup of the Dartmouth tennis team to defend the New England title in the singles and doubles at Longwood Cricket Club next week, was announced today. Sanders and Carlton will enter the singles, and Sanders will pair up with Howe in the doubles. Sanders won the singles title last year, and pairing with Howe took the doubles championship.

JONES KNOCKS OUT SCULLY IN THE SEVENTH

Salem, May 19. — Bert Jones, of Revere, won a decision over John C. Scully, of South Boston, in seven rounds at the North Street Rink. It was the feature bout of several other attractions under the direction of Naumkeag A. A. Jones scored a clean K. O.

ALEXANDER AND DESCHGER IN BOX

Chicago, Ill., May 20.—Prospects for a pastime between the long idle Cubs and Braves were brighter today and the ancient enemies who were forced to foul Thursday and Friday owing to the steady rain hope to engage in another combat on the Northside grounds.

No changes were announced in the hurling selections and game time should see Grover Alexander tuning up for the Bruins with Joe Oeschger making ready in front of the Boston coop.

The Braves will depart tonight for St. Louis where they are scheduled to mingle with the hard hitting Cardinals in four games.

From the Mound City they will steam eastward, pausing for two contests with the Giants, after which they will cross the bridge into Brooklyn for four games before going back to their own wigwam on June 1 to greet the champions.

The Brave camp here was devoid of news yesterday. The players were notified at noon that hostilities had been abolished for the day and most of them spent the afternoon attending the movies.

EVERETT INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE WILL START

The Everett Industrial Baseball League will get underway next Wednesday at High School Field. Boston Oil and Merrimac Chemical Company will meet in a twilight game. President George E. Hunt of the Everett Board of Trade has promised to be on hand to throw out the first ball.

LYNN HAS CITY AMATEUR LEAGUE

Down Lynn way will be the scene of action this afternoon, when Mayor Harlan McPhetres has assured the whole city that he would be on hand for the celebration and opening of the Shoe City Amateur League.

The Lynn league will be run under way and all of the two teams six teams in A Division and a like number in B Division, will compete in front of City Hall at 1:45 P. M.

At said time whistles, trumpets, horns and the like will all blast forward and a parade headed by "his honor" and other city fathers will march to Little River grounds. Along with them will be a platoon of bluecoats with the city band and the twelve ball clubs associated in the league.

When they arrive at the park Mayor McPhetres will continue his march out to the flagpole and with the captains of the Riversides and the St. Mary's club hoist Old Glory and the city flag.

The above mentioned teams will also be in the opening game of the season with Mayor McPhetres will toss in the first agate and the game will be on.

The following teams are in the league and on different nights and Sundays they will play on the Little River baseball grounds: Riversides, A. A., St. Mary's A. A., Fr. Mathews, Ferrett A. A., Haddin A. C., Ingersoll-Rand A. C., Jones Brothers, Suffolk A. C., Y. D. Club, Rovers and the Lynn A. C.

GAME AT MERRITT PARK, CHELSEA, ON SUNDAY

One of the best attractions on Sunday will be the game on Merritt Park, Chelsea, between Dilboy Post, V. F. W., of Somerville, and the Chelsea Millerteams.

Following is the probable batting order of the teams:

Dilboy Post—Wright, 2b; O'Doherty, ss; Sweeney, 3b; Robertson, Greenwood, 1b; McGrath, lf; Crowley, cf; Turner, rf; Agnew or Peabody, c; Haley, Faire or Ryan, p.

Millstreams—Toomey, 3b; Gerrgan, 2b; Zecha, ss, Mulligan, 1b; Timmins, lf; Watson, cf; McGlaney, rf; Dewire, c; Morris, p.

FAST GAME FOR NEPONSET SUNDAY

One of the best baseball finals to be seen around Boston will be staged tomorrow afternoon on the Neponset Playgrounds.

The crack Newburyport team will come to town and will tackle the Neponset Wanderers, who on last Sunday opened their season with a victory over the West Quincy nine.

The Newburyport outfit sure has a mean ball club, boasting of such players as John Ganzel, former big show player, the two Conley boys and Durning of the big leagues.

Newburyport, on two different occasions, last season defeated the much-talked-about Haverhill town team and with said Conley Durning, formerly of the Dodgers, will be an added attraction for the Sunday gathering.

The Wanderers with their usual strong line-up are out to wallop the invaders.

B. U. Girl Athletes

Miss Viola Byam of Chelmsford was elected president of the Girls' Athletic Association of the Boston University College of Liberal Arts for the coming year. Other officers are as follows: Vice-president, Eleanor Warren of Chelmsford, secretary, Ramona Davis of Bradford; treasurer, Alice Wilder of Ashby.

This Day in History—May 20, 1922

THIS is the anniversary of the birth, in 1688, of Alexander Pope, poet and essayist and one of the greatest satirists of his time. His style is faultless, and many of his lines have passed into common use.

Will Our Arms Vanish?

ACCORDING to one scientist, our arms and legs will gradually disappear from our bodies, though he estimates this calamity as not occurring for at least 10,000 years. Meanwhile, we do not have to worry.

Souls for Sale

RUPERT HUGHES' GREATEST NOVEL

What Would YOU Do?

IF you were beautiful, young Remember Steddon, a Massachusetts minister's daughter, whose sweetheart died before the wedding, would you try to bring up your baby among those who knew you in your own home town? Or would you run away for a fresh start with new surroundings? If you had your living to make, would you try to get into the movies? Remember, on the advice of Dr. Bretherick, starts for California. This struggle of a young girl to work out her own salvation is stirringly told in Rupert Hughes' greatest story. Go on with the story.

SEVENTH INSTALMENT

THE eyes of the women flung along the aisle also widened and fixed as they recognized in Remember a something she had not yet found out; that she was very, very pretty—attractive, compulsive. She was like a magnet that had never met iron filings before had never learned the mystery and could not understand it, as we think we understand what is merely familiar.

Plainly Dressed

She was plainly dressed and had never been adorned. Only her neatness kept her from shabbiness. But she had beauty and appeal, the appeal of a ripe peach grown in somebody's orchard but thrust out over a wayside fence to tempt the passerby. Some of the men who saw her did not care for peaches, or had had their fill of them, and regarded her with indifference. But others looked hungry, or at least betrayed an academic approval.

Such of the women as had no instinct of jealousy were saddened by her prettiness and her youth, and felt that she brightened the rowsk and sweetened the air. Others saw in her a rival, a danger; and suspicion narrowed their lids. They consoled themselves with the thought that she was wicked and worthless—an opinion which they could not know she shared with them.

On the train Mem had planned to do a bit of thinking. But after the first exultance of escape and the thrill of speed she relapsed into despondency and fear—fear of everything and everybody. She had still to act, but she was a strolling player now with an ever-changing audience. And this gave her a new kind of stage fright. The only familiar companion was remorse. She could not run away from that. Running away was a new subject for remorse.

She thought of herself as a convict escaped breathless from a deserved punishment to a wilderness of uncertainties—as a trusty who has betrayed the confidence of a kindly warden and rewarded confidence with deceit.

She had expected to find on the journey leisure for contrition and the remolding of her soul. But the world would not let her alone. Everything was new to her. Everything was a crowded film of novelty.

New Experience

She knew the minimum of the outside sphere possible to a girl who had had any education at all.

She had never been on a sleeping car before.

She had read no novels except sweetened water as the Sunday-school library afforded. She had been too magnificent at home except the church publications; and her girl friends happened to be infrequent readers of fiction.

Naively had no bookstore and the news stands did little trade in the periodicals that are credited with the ruin of the young when the cities have time enough to spare from the theater and moving picture and the dance.

She had never been to a theatre or a moving picture. She had never danced even a square dance, not so much as a Dan Tucker, a Virginia reel, or a minuet in costume.

She had never ridden a bicycle or a horse, and had never been in an automobile except some old bone-shaker that drowned conversation in its own rattle.

She had never gambled, or been profane or even slangy or disrespectful to her parents. She had never seen a cocktail.

No Low Necks

She had never worn a low-necked, high-skirted dress. She had never seen a bathing suit or had one on. Girls did not swim in the river at Ayerly. In fact she had escaped all the things that forullats point to as the reason why girls go wrong. Yet she had, as the saying is, gone wrong—utterly, indubitably.

Yet no fast young men had led her astray, or so much as tried to lead her astray. She had never made the acquaintance of a fast young man. Her heterodoxy lover was slow and honorable and religious, everything a young man ought to be. But, unfortunately for her, one of the things a young man ought to be, must be if he is a man, is passionate; otherwise he can never be a husband or a father; and a woman cannot be a good wife and mother if she lacks those fires which burn when they escape—and which no power has ever kept from occasional utilitarian escape.

And so on a Sabbath evening the solemn young man to whom she was betrothed had been somehow impelled, by seeing through the window her parents kissing her good night, to want to add his kiss to theirs. On the porch that frowned out the heathen moon he had held her hand a little more stratify than was his wont. He had drawn her to him and moved towards her. There seemed to be volition in neither of them; they just floated together with a mysterious lowishness.

Lips Touched

She had looked up in questioning surprise at the hot strength of his handsome face. He had looked down at her in questioning surprise at the unusual beauty of her shadow-lined face. Not even after at all, she was somehow more beautiful than ever, since imagination had fed revenge. And who can give laws to imagination?

Their lips had moved together by the same amazing attraction. The hasty brushing of her mouth with his had been like the drawing of a match along a kindling surface, and he had been impelled to return for another kiss, a longer kiss, the strangest kiss that either had ever known. And then a strange, a terrifying, irresistible mood had imbued them both. His arms were suddenly like two serpents about her, ruthless with constriction. Her arms were serpents suddenly.

They seemed to feel a necessity for becoming one; their hearts were turned to a sweet, shivering, poisonous jelly. Their blinded eyes were clenched to shut out the world and shut in the heaven that lifted them as on the little wings of cherubim.

Mem closed her eyes in a sudden return of memory like a reexperience. She almost swooned with a terror of remembrance, and her repentance seemed to flee, contemptible and ridiculous, as her reason had fled from that first visit of romance.

She was astounded at herself. She felt a hypocrite even to herself. She was not really sorry! She could never trust herself to learn. In spite of all that had proved the folly and the evil of her mistake she wondered if it would not always recur to her as somehow a divine madness wiser far than any earthly reason.

Brain Scorched

Her brain was scorched with a furious thought whipping through it like a laughing flame. A mocking Lilith seemed to be laughing at her holier self. A new being inher soul was exploding that she had given herself in all ecstasy to Elwood before he died. Even if he were damned for it, it seemed well that he should not have left this earth and this flesh without knowing its fegradiso.

There was neither marrying nor giving in marriage where he had gone, and their reunion would have been a bodiless greeting of ghosts if this sweet world had not overwhelmed them and their worldly frames with its supreme rapture.

Elwood had never known anything but poverty, hard work, poor food, none of the silk and satin, none of the revelry and the wine and the splendor of the world. He had known nothing rich but her love.

Body Was Music

He had been caught at his selfdenial, putting a little of his earnings into the pitiful savings he had achieved. He had been struck as with a great shell and shattered like the splintered mast that filled his poor, crushed body. He had died fighting against any outcry of protest or of pain. He had died muttering something that nobody knew—but she felt that he was stammering her name with his all-obliterated lips.

And her body was one music, her members chanted a triumphant song, because his body had known the symphonic music of her love.

Then the rhapsody died away. The Lilith vanished from her mood, and the little gray Puritan named Remember came back to the profaned shrine of her soul aghast, incredulous, pavoited. Romance had turned to a gargoyle of grotesque and obscene ugliness. She could not believe herself or trust her own profoundest faiths again.

She was afraid and felt herself condemned to destruction. She was a scapegoat going out into the wilderness, but capable of sudden frenzies of pride in her burden of sin, incapable of shaking it off, afraid of being lonely without it.

She returned slowly from the blind voyage of her soul into the invisible and wondered what had passed before her eyes in the long interim. She was learning to know herself and in herself to know humanity. Her ignorance had been abysmal. To those who can believe ignorance beautiful, it had been ideal. There was peace of a sort in those sheltered canons, but now she was climbing the mountains, the crags. She would see strange snows, strange flowers, exquisite deserts, smothering Edens.

The clanking uproar of the entrance into Kansas City filled her ears and drove away the music of the fiends. Factories, warehouses, freight trains, roundhouses, warning bells at street crossings whose watchmen stood with flags before long bars, all the usual noisy hustle of approach to a large town assailed her. The train seemed to hurry, though it went more slowly. It was the plenitude of objects of interest that gave it the illusion of speed, as it is in the passage of a life.

Mem had never seen a great city, and this metropolis had a tremendous majesty in her eyes.

Some of the passengers from Eastern points were getting off and she was fascinated to see how the porter whisk-broomed their coats and hats and palmed their tips with an almost dancing rhythm. One of the portly women passengers, whose voice had outclicked the wheels, asked the porter how long the train would stop, and when the diplomat said "Eight minutes, miss," she made a loud declaration of her intention to stretch her legs. Others made ready for a breath of air. And so did Mem, who was amazed at eavesdropping on everybody, picking up what hints she could to disguise her ignorance of travel and appear as a complete railroader.

The passengers choked the straight corridor along the row of compartments, and Mem took her place in the line. One of the doors opened and framed a tall and powerful young man with a peculiarly wistful face. His eyes brushed Mem as he lifted his hat as he asked her pardon for squeezing past her.

Passengers Stared

He knocked at another steel door and called through. "Oh, Robins, better come out for a bit of exercise."

While he waited some of the passengers were twisting their necks to watch him and nudging and whispering to one another. When the door opened and Robins stepped out there was such a sensation and such a booing starting that Mem turned to look.

A young woman of an almost dazzling beauty came out, smiling and bareheaded. She noted the yokelry in the corridor and her smile died. She stepped back into her stateroom and when she reappeared she wore a large droopbrim hat and a thick black veil.

"I envy you the privilege of the veil," the young man said. Mem could not hear her answer, for the passengers began to move and she was carried forward with them to the steps and the station platform into a morass of handbags and red-capped negro porters. She escaped the tangle and found a clear space for her promenade.

It gave her extraordinary ex hilaration to be in a strange city It was Cathay to her.

Mem walked up an down the platform as if her feet were winged. There was a delightful frightfulness about wondering what she would do if the engine started suddenly. She would like to run and swing aboard like a professional trainman. When she saw that the engine had unlinked itself and departed into the distance beyond the cave of the station, she felt safe enough to explore all the way up to the baggage car.

A Funny Lot

The baggage men and mail crew looked at her with that new way these foreigners had of looking at her, and she turned back. The other passengers trudging up and down also interested her—the men especially—all except the tall young fellow with the veiled lady. The rest were a funny lot, bareheaded or in traveling caps She noted how they followed the tall young man and commented on his manners. But she could not catch their words.

Some of the strollers bought things to eat from boys who carried baskets of oranges, chocolate, chewing gum, and cigars Mem felt a longing to buy something for the sheer sport of buying. But she had no money for extravagances.

Still, when she saw a newsman with a cargo of magazines, she could not resist the appeal. She would charge it off to education. She went so far as to buy two magazines devoted to the moving pictures. She had the curiosity of Blunderbore for final with concerning that forbidden closet.

As she was picking out the exact change with trembling fingers in her purse, one of the magazines slipped from under her elbow and fell to the ground.

Hands Touched

She turned and stooped to recover it. Her hand touched a hand that had just anticipated hers. She looked up quickly and her head knocked off the hat of the man who had tried to save her the trouble of picking up her magazine. Their noses were so close together that he seemed to have only one Cyclopean eye.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

Copyright, 1923 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

By ANN LISLE

"LIONS!" I cried, my heart thumping so that it seemed to bump into my words as I tried to express them. "I don't know what to say—or how to thank you for what you've managed to do Dick West fooled all the rest of us who wanted to find him. But you—trailed him. You've got him for me."

In the excitement of realizing that Jim's enemy was within reach—practically in my power—I entirely overlooked one phase of Lyons' story. But in the next moment he reminded me. Soberly, in a subdued and respectful voice, he took up his narrative precisely at the point where I had interrupted it. He repeated his own words with a strange monotony which gave them an arresting emphasis.

"Yes—I almost trips over Mr. Lee as I comes out into the corridor. I didn't have time to duck. And there were your father and I face to face."

My father! This is the first time Lyons has come into the open and acknowledged in so many words that he understands the relationship between me and little, dejected-looking man I so often driven me to visit 'My father" I knew Lyons had brought that word into his narrative to remind me of the cost of arresting Dick West

"What did my father do?" I asked.

He steps up to me like a little bantam, ma'am, and asks me if I don't know that's a service stairway I'm using and I'm out of bounds of the hotel. 'Is this your floor—or do you wish me to show you the elevator?' he asks, as perky as you please."

She Wonders Why

"And then what did you do?" I asked in a monotone which accompanied the sudden heaviness of my heart.

"What could I do, ma'am? If I make a move that puts him wise Dick makes his getaway. Having no warrant I couldn't do a thing. What I wanted to do was to get a telephone and let you know. So I says to Mr. Lee, acting as if I'd never seen him and hadn't a suspicion who he were, that I'd got off at the wrong floor and were trying for a short cut to the floor below, and would he please show me to the elevator if he didn't mind, as if I were all mixed-up like."

"And what then? I asked in the heavy pause which followed.

"Oh, Mrs. Harrison, I hopes by all that's sacred to me I did right. For a second there alone in the corridor with that lone man I thought how easy it would be to tie him up so he couldn't give no warning and then make a break for West's room and get him, too. . . . And then to go to the police and take a chance on it all being right until I could find you and get you to see it through the rest of the way."

"Why didn't you?" I asked almost under my breath.

"I couldn't, ma'rm. I couldn't lay hands on your father. It might have been my way in the old days—but now, out of respect for you Mis' Harrison, I had no more power to do that than I have to go back to breaking into second stories when the family goes down to dinner."

With a choke in my voice, I turned to face the man whose feelings were so fine and whose loyalty so sure.

Never before in my life have I found myself in such a tangle of desires and problems. There was Dad Lee weighing in the balance against Dick. There was Dick, who had done such cruel, madman's harm to Neal—and to Jim.

Jim! As my husband's name whirled into my dazed consciousness I felt my line fold sternly against before I realized it. Jim was a decision. And then I turned back to Lyons.

"Everything you've done is right," I said, "You've been splendid, George Lyons. You've been splendid, George Lyons. You're an honest, straight-thinking, loyal friend. But now it's up to me to do what is right for me. So we'll go and arrest Dick West, and then we'll take an officer and go down and arrest Dick West. I address my father as 'father' as an old friend. But my loyalty to my husband demands that Dick West pay his penalty, even if his adherent must suffer."

I was speaking to an equal—without evasion of any sort.

"I got the warrant, ma'am," said Lyons respectfully. "You see, I couldn't find you this afternoon. So this time I had to get busy myself. And when you did get home, Bertha, she reported that you looked dead beat and as if you needed a good hot dinner before I came searing you with any excitement. And such she knew I was up my s.eeve by looking at my face."

Got The Warrant

"You got the warrant!" I gasped and with fear in my heart of what the evening must reveal. "We'll start at once."

As I started toward the door, bound to get my hat and coat and start off with Lyons on the mission which would result in causing Dick West to suffer, and in involving Dad Lee and my own right to hold up my head in the world, the doorbell rang insistently.

It seemed to be pealing in my ears in the way noises do when nerves are jumpy

Virginia! Jim! She'd sneer when it comes out that Dad Lee is my father—and the intimate friend of the man who betrayed my own Jim. Jim! How he must be silenced at the revelation of what a scoundrel Jim—my Jim—Virginia's Society—Jim. For myself social ruin, ostracism, perhaps

My throat was dry, my eyes smarted, and I felt very sorry for myself. Then I d.d a little thinking. I was doing what I knew to be right. It was only just to society to stop a madman like Dick West from pursuing his career. It was necessary for Jim that I arrest his enemy.

WORKING GIRLS LOOK HERE

Read what Mrs. Lucas Writes Concerning Her Troubles, which May be Just Like Yours

St. Louis, Mo. — "I had troubles that all women are apt to have, with pains in my back, was tired, nervous feelings and a weak stomach. I had been this way about a year and was unable to work or stand on my feet for any length of time. My husband's aunt told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done her and begged me to try it. I did, and my pains and weakness are gone, my stomach is all right and I do my work at home and also work for Swift's Packing Company. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends and you may publish my letter as a testimonial." — Mrs. LUDI LUCAS, 719A Vandeventer St., St. Louis, Mo.

Again and again one woman tells another of the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

You who work must keep yourself strong and well. You can't work if you are suffering from such troubles. Mrs. Lucas couldn't. She tried our Vegetable Compound and her letter tells you what it did for her. Give it a fair trial now.

WHEN SHALL WE MEET AGAIN?	COMIN' THRO' THE RYE
CHORUS	If a body meet a body,
When shall we meet again?	Comin' thro' the rye;
After this "Au revoir," dear;	If a body kiss a body,
Will you still love me then	Need a body cry?
Or will our dream be o'er, dear?	Every lassie has her laddie,
Will you cast the new love aside for me?	Nane, they say, ha'e I;
Or just smile to think you once sighed for me?	Yet a' the lads they smile on me,
All will be answered when,	When comin' thro' the rye.
We two shall meet again.

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL—A NEW SERIAL

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

HE sighed. His missed Patty. In his way he had been fond of her. To be sure he had never denied himself anything in order to promote her happiness or pleasure—but she had brightened the house and she had been good company. It was really dreadful that she should have been snatched out of life in such a horrible way.

He shook his head impatiently. He resented sadness and depression. It was against his principles to feel blue over what could not be helped.

He must change the trend of his thoughts This house—from which the daughter had been taken by death and in which the mother lay almost like a corpse—was awful. It was enough to give any man the "willies." He would not yield to the gloomy atmosphere of the place. The little companion must help him out of the doldrums.

Unusually Pretty

She was looking unusually pretty tonight, he observed, as she entered the dining room just after his father and he had taken their places at the dinner table. Richard sprang to his feet and pulled Adelaide's chair out for her.

"I am sorry I am late," she murmured apologetically. Mrs. Hollingshead called me back just as I was coming downstairs—so I was detained for a minute or two.

"And you were detained by your drive, too," Richard amended in a low voice, with a glance of smiling comprehension.

The girl's cheeks were flushed, and they grew a shade pinker at this teasing speech.

"I went out to mail a letter, and, as I returned, Dr. Carter was starting away from here. He gave me a little turn in the fresh air."

Surely if she was in love with the physician, she could not answer as frankly as that, Richard mused. He smiled at her again, approvingly.

"I am glad you got the breath of air. You look prettier for it."

He could not know that she had forced herself to speak honestly of the drive—bracing herself to do so by remembering that Dr. Carter had said that the one thing he liked best in anyone was sincerity.

She was determined to be sincere hereafter. She longed to deserve his good opinion.

In her determination to be sincere and straightforward in the future, Adelaide told Mr. Hollingshead and Richard of her proposed visit to her own home.

The trio were having their after dinner coffee as he explained the situation.

Listened With Interest

Father and son listened with interest, the young man nodding his comprehension and approval.

"Sure," he agreed, "you must be at home if your mother is going to have an operation, and the sanity white of you to be willing to take such a short time off. Only twenty-four hours! Think of that, Dad."

"When must you go," Henry Hollingshead asked.

"After dinner tomorrow night," Adelaide answered.

"Suppose Hannah inquires for you?" the husband suggested.

Here is a little bit of true life put into a letter. Mrs. Alexander Bradley of Danbury, Conn., says: "After 14 long years of trying different remedies I have at last found a good medicine—Dr. True's Elixir.

"I was nearly discouraged. I was giving the oldest girl something nearly every night, but now I keep a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir handy, and only give it occasionally. I have tried so many things, but now as soon as I see signs of worms I give Dr. True's Elixir for quick relief.

"My son, 14 years of age, was always troubled with worms when small and 'Dr. True's' was unknown to me then. I always have it on hand now, as I have another small child. They even ask for more. Now please print this letter so other anxious mothers may know the good results which follow Dr. True's Elixir for children suffering with worms and constipation, as I cannot recommend it too highly."

Symptoms to watch: Constipation, offensive breath, swollen upper lip, deranged stomach, occasional pains, pale face of leaden tint, eyes heavy and dull, itching eyelids, short, dry cough, grinding of the teeth, red points on the tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

A great deal of sickness comes from irregular bowels, a vital part of the body. At the first signs of constipation give Dr. True's Elixir—for it is the right kind—pleasant to take, with no griping or distressing after-effects.

A well-known New Yorker writes: "While visiting in historic old Plymouth (Mass.), my family became acquainted with your Dr. True's Elixir, the True Family Laxative and Worm Expeller. It does all you claim for it in aiding digestion and relieving insomnia and constipation. Please ship me six large size bottles, for mother is in need of it." —Wm. I. Ralph.

Nearly every grown-up as well as every child needs a laxative. Keep the bowels regular by using Dr. True's Elixir. 60c—$1.20.

FINANCE —AND— BUSINESS

By B. C. Forbes

Enter another national business leader, Owen D. Young.

The new head of the General Electric Company, one of the largest industrial enterprises in the world, has come to the front with sensational rapidity during recent years. It is not so long ago that he was just a lawyer in Boston. But, like Judge Gary, he developed aptitude and liking for handling business problems, and his services began to be in keen demand by important interests.

J. P. Morgan & Co. have been tapped, were mainly responsible for having Mr. Young brought to New York. He was made general counsel and vice-president of the General Electric Company. His liberal views and his engaging personality enabled him to rub shoulders with the company's working forces very successfully, and his activities in that connection made him a very valuable executive. Those able to judge declare that his handling of the many and complicated legal problems incidental to the development of the electric industry has been most skilful.

In inner circles it has been understood for two or three years that Colonel A. W. Griffin's successor as chairman of the General Electric Company would be Owen D. Young. Some idea of how highly he is rated by the House of Morgan may be gathered from the fact that Mr. Young has been made a director of General Motors and the Bankers Trust Company, organizations in which the famous banking firm is interested.

One of his friends remarked to him, "I hope you have a strong stomach, Owen." "Why?" he asked, bewildered. "Because some of the fawning and toadying you are in for will be enough to make you sick."

Such how-towing, I rather think, is more likely to turn Young's stomach than his head.

Talking about promotion turning a man's head, I was told this incident at the Elks' Convention this week. David Sarnoff, a Polish immigrant, who early came to this country and who went through many hardships, developed tremendously keen interest in electric communication. He studied, experimented, sweated. Long before radio came into vogue, he had made it his life's study. Becoming associated with the Radio Corporation of America, he won his way upward until he became commercial manager.

Then, one day, he was promoted to be general manager, ranking next to the president.

He was inwardly, tremendously elated, but he was determined not to reveal this by the slightest act or word. He is a self-contained young—he is only thirty-two now—he knew everybody would be eyeing him to see how he would take his promotion would cause him to put on airs. So he made up his mind most firmly that the only thing the first day of his new job—he would do everything exactly as he had done it the day before.

When he arrived at his office, his secretary looked at him in a peculiar way. He asked what was the matter. The secretary replied: "Did you know you are wearing a very soiled collar and a soiled shirt?" Sarnoff stepped over to a mirror, and sure enough there were several streaks of dirt on his collar and one on his shirt-front.

The explanation? He had been so determined that he would follow exactly the routine of the previous day that, automatically, he had put on the same collar and shirt!

That was a year ago, and there are still no signs that he has allowed his remarkable rise in the world to get the better of his modesty.

Does blood tell? Sometimes, at least. The American engineer who is probably better known abroad than any other of John Hays Hammond, who first made his mark as a mining engineer in California and who later became by far the most famous gold-mining engineer in the world through his achievements in South Africa in the days before the Boer War.

The newspapers announce this week that John Hays Hammond, Jr., has evolved a new invention, which, it is declared, will prevent any radio station from taking messages not intended for it. At present, anyone can "listen in." This fact has been cited as limiting the usefulness, commercially, of wireless telephony. Young Hammond's invention, which is described as remarkably simple, can actually accomplish what is claimed for it, his fame will be firmly established.

As a matter of fact, young John Hays Hammond has already won widespread recognition as an inventor in a similar field of activity. He came into prominence during the war through his invention of a countervance which enabled a ship to be steered at sea from land, by means of an electric current sent through the air.

In this instance, it promises to be a case of "like father, like son."

Stocks Rise in an Active New York Market

RAILS ADVANCE; STEELS ARE HEAVY

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks closed strong in New York after one of the most active weeks of the session in the history of the Stock Exchange. Transactions for two hours of trading approximated 800,000 shares.

The market had a strong start, although early gains were small. Coal and independent steels were inclined toward a lower level. They were overshadowed by the heavy liquidation of the Youngstown concern from the six-company merger group caused free selling of their issues.

The market was slightly somewhat irregular at the end of thirty minutes, but rallied more or less afterwards.

Rails were the leaders of the upward movement, with New Haven the most active and Delaware, Lackawanna and Western making the largest gain. United States Steel was among the strong stocks, selling as high as 103 late in the morning. This is its highest since 1920. It closed at 101¾ with a gain of 1¾. New Haven ended at 34¾, up 1¾, and its highest for more than a year.

Among largest gains were at the close were Mexican Petroleum 1 at 136, ater selling at 137½; Producers and Refiners 1 at 44⅝; Sinclair 1⅜ at 24⅝; Texas and Pacific 1⅜ at 34⅝; Delaware, Lackawanna and Western 2 at 127, after selling at 129; St. Paul 3 at 25¾ and Canadian Pacific 1¾ at 148.

Among losses were American Locomotive, 1 at 114¾; Republic Steel, 2⅛ at 72⅞, after selling at 74; Midvale, 1 at 41⅝; Crucible, ¾ at 73⅝; Vanadium, ½ at 50⅞; Retail Stores, 1⅛ at 66¾, and Baldwin, ⅝ at 117⅝. Studebaker had advanced ½ to 120⅜.

There was profit taking on a large scale during the forenoon. Foreign exchange rates had an irregular movement.

Boston Market Is Strong and Active

After an irregular opening the Boston market became strong and there were the rule at the close. It was unusually active for a weekend session and trading had some breadth. Rails were strong under the leadership of New Haven, which advanced 2¾ to 34¾, its highest in several years. Boston & Albany gained a point, selling at 30. The A issue of the latter road was up 2. Both Boston & Albany advanced ¼.

Coppers were on a fractionally higher level as a group. Wolverine moved up a point. Issues in the iron one to more than two points were led by Cuban Cane, United Fruit and Eastern Steamship. Whitman Watch sagged a point, but partially recovered. Agricultural Chemical common and preferred each dropped a point.

The Boston Curb was quiet and irregular. Quotas for leaders were Verde Mines 3 cents at 43 cents, Eureka 1 cent at 27 cents, Chief ¼ at 5 and United Verde Extension 2 at 31, its highest for this year. Zinc and Montana was unchanged.

BOND MARKET DULL, BUT TONE IS GOOD

New York, May 20.—The bond market was dull today, but had a good tone, most changes being upward. Liberties were firm and the two 5 per cent. issues of the Mexican government made further gains. The bonds of John Hays Hammond held within narrow limits.

Seaboard Adjustment 5s, St. Louis & San Francisco Income 6s, Chile Copper 7s, American Smelting 5s, Midvale Steel 5s and Interborough Rapid Transit 6s were better by fractions to one point.

Baltimore & Ohio 4s, Colorado & Southern 4s and Armour 4½s eased slightly.

NEW YORK CURB HAS A STRONG OPENING

New York, May 20.—The New York Curb market had a strong opening, but advances were as small as general. Hudson Motors, concerning which there are favorable dividend reports, made a good gain. Oils were the most active group.

New York Bank Statement

New York, May 20.—The weekly statement by New York Clearing House banks showed surplus of $5,521,480, a decrease of $31,384,000.

Raw Sugar Steady

New York, May 20.—The raw sugar market had a steady opening, prices being: May, 3.48 bid; July, 3.70 to 3.66; Sept., 3.55 to 3.56; Dec., 3.96 to 3.98.

FEAR SHORTAGE OF LABOR IN MILLS

Cotton mills where strikes are in effect are to feel a shortage of help according to reports from Lowell, Fawtucket and other parts of Rhode Island.

With the arrival of good weather operatives are leaving cities for good and moving onto farms in the rural districts. Farms in Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire are said to be in demand.

Wanskuck Woolen Mills Are Again Operating

Providence, R. I., May 20.—For the first time in two years the mills of the Wanskuck Company manufacturers of woolens and worsteds are in operation. The operatives in the Wanskuck mill, the Geneva mill, the Steere mill and the Mohegan mill were plea antly surprised when the manag ment announced the inauguration of the five days' week after two months past the plants of the Wanskuck Co. have been operating only three or four days a week. About 2000 operatives are affected.

The Master Builders' Association of Providence has met demands of carpenters and bricklayers for increases with a decision to keep the present rates in effect until they are changed as the result of arbitration. The carpenters have asked for an increase from $1 to $1.25 an hour and the carpenters from 85 to 90 cents an hour.

Fawtucket Operatives Hold Meetings Daily

Pawtucket, R. I., May 20.—While officials of the United Textile Workers of America are daily attending hearings on the petitions now before the Superior Court relative to the granting of an injunction forbidding strikers are assembling as usual each morning in Labor Temple, where the situation is reviewed. There have been no demonstrations since the hearings began. The strikers are determined to stay out and continue the strike, but the temporary loss of leaders has left them uncertain as to methods of procedure.

If the Jenckes Spinning and Crown Manufacturing companies fail to obtain the injunctions, it is probable that picketing of the plants will be resumed. In the meanwhile the city is enjoying a period of quiet, unmarked by morning brawls and midnight skirmishes between strikers and alleged "scabs."

Moving to Farms in Quebec And Northern Vermont

Lowell, May 20.—Rather than return to work under a reduction of 20 per cent in wages, many families are moving out of Lowell hoping to get work never accept what they term starvation pay. Farms in Quebec and in northern Vermont are claiming their attention.

The Hamilton cotton mills are said to have gradually increased their force of help recently. Officials report all departments running, though on a greatly curtailed basis.

The strike in the Amoskeag Manufacturing Corporation continues, and as in the case of the Hamilton, production is far below normal. Other cotton mills in Lowell, employing about 8,000 operatives, are running on a basis of about 75 per cent.

Acadia Mill Keeps at Work Despite Pickets

Lawrence, May 20.—Officials of the Acadia Mill deny the plant will close as a result of intensified picketing. It was learned today that a committee of the Textile Board of Overseers' Club of the Arlington mills has been actively engaged for the past week in visiting and talking to the needy employes of the plant who were sent out several weeks ago.

Workers Signing Up at Mills in Nashua

Nashua, N. H., May 20.—It is reported that every day sees a number of workers signing up at the employment offices of the Nashua and Jackson mills signifying their willingness to return to work if the mills open. This action is interpreted to mean that when the mills have a sufficient number who agree to return, they will open their gates. There is a fairly large number at work in the mills at present as an "upkeep" gang.

Haverhill Likely to Get New Shoe Firm

Haverhill, May 20.—The Interlocking Shoe Machine Co. of St. Louis, one of the largest producers of footwear in the world, is reported contemplating the purchase or lease of the three Burgess-Lang cement factories here.

No arbor for the fixing of price in the local toplift industry has been secured. The latest name proposed is that of Alderman Ernest A. Manning.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, May 20.—The cotton market opened 4 to 7 points lower on trade buying in the absence of any selling, reporting the favorable weather reports. Wall Street and the room were the best buyers. The list rallied from 7 to 8 points after the opening on week-end covering, closing prices were: May, 21.07; July, 20.07; Oct., 18.56; Dec., 19.86; Jan., 19.75; March, 19.58.

Droys Out of Merger

New York, May 20.—The Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company has dropped out of the six-company steel merger which was to include it and the Midvale Steel & Ordnance, Republic Iron & Steel, Inland Steel Steel & Tube of America and Brier Hill Steel.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE FAIREST FLOWER

By Bertha R. McDonald

IT all began with the advent of a package of flower seeds from the Congressman in Washington, followed in the very next mail by a nurseryman's brilliant-hued catalogue. Nan Butterworth never had cared especially for out-of-door sports, nor had a garden ever held any particular appeal for her, but there was something about those seeds and the lovely catalogue which awakened within her all sorts of latent sensibilities.

She was fond of flowers, although up to date her possessions along that line had been of the hot-house variety, and by the time she had looked through the catalogue once or twice she was really enthusiastic about having a flower garden of her own.

When Billy Horton came that evening she lost no time telling him about it and after dilating for an hour or on her love for pansies, mignonette and golden glow, Billy caught the fever and proceeded to lay bare his soul.

"Nan, dear," he began, "I understand you as I never did before. Some of the boys say you're heartless, but no girl could love flowers like that could possibly be heartless.

When he went on outlining dreamily his lifelong hope of some day owning a bungalow in a suburban village, of an ideal wife training honeysuckle vines over his door and bringing roses to deck his breakfast table, Nan decided it was time to interfere with his train of thought.

"But, Billy," she said mischievously, "I haven't said a word about wanting any Sweet William in my garden."

"Oh, that's all right little girl" he returned cheerfully. "I've no desire to hurry you. When you are tired of doing your own spading just let me know. I'll run right over with a jack-in-the-pulpit and we'll set the canterbury bells growing for the wedding feast."

All his quibs only fired her with greater determination to show him she was not the vacillating creature he was trying to make her out. She would have a garden in spite of every difficulty—she'd grow real flowers in it, too—in fact, show Billy Horton a thing or two.

There are difficulties about growing flowers when one lives in an apartment building, but Nan got around them by putting up window boxes. The seeds were duly planted and the sixth day, when the little gardener thought she discovered a tiny green shoot poking its way through the black earth, the janitor appeared with orders to remove the boxes, the tenant below having complained of the water dripping down on her window.

Poor Nan was crushed. While she was weeping, Betty Halliday came in and proved a friend indeed.

"Why Nan—you poor kid!" she exclaimed slangily. "There's a garden all laid out in our back yard—bricked-in beds and everything—all but the seeds. You've more than welcome to use it. Everybody at our house hates gardening.

So Nan transferred her activities from window boxes to the Halliday's yard next door and immediately Billy Horton appeared with an offer to help.

"Each seed shall be planted reverently, Nan," he said, with a twinkle in his eye. "Each tendril shall be supported with the greatest care and each flower nurtured as though it had a soul."

"Indeed, you'll not figure in this at all, Billy," answered Nan sharply, piqued again by the tinge of ridicule in his tone. "This is my garden and it shall be cultivated according to my idea!"

The first day in the Halliday's yard was wonderful, although Nan's face was streaked with dirt and her knees bruised from kneeling on a stone. At the end of the next three days the skin on her right palm was broken and one of her eyes was swollen shut with neuralgia, contracted from sitting on the damp, cold ground to rest.

By the time the first warm, sunny morning came, the ground was ready and Nan started to put in her seeds. She was hot and muddy and had just succeeded in sprinkling herself instead of the flower bed, when Billy came along and sat down on a rustic bench to watch the proceedings. In a few moments Betty Halliday joined him, cool and fresh in an exquisite orchid dress, with a sports coat over her arm.

In her embarrassment Nan smeared her face with wet earth and completed the bedraggling of her gown. She was ready a dozen times to ask the pair of intruders to move on, but it was Betty's yard, so how could she?

From that day things went from bad to worse. Every warm morning Betty tripped forth in the daintiest of costumes, by contrast calling attention to Nan's soiled skirts and mud-caked shoes. Which was infinitely worse, Billy Horton seemed always to be with her.

The climax came one day after it had turned quite cool, when Nan looked up from sorting bulbs to see Betty Halliday serving steaming chocolate to Billy in the sun porch which overlooked the garden. A sharp twinge shot through her heart as Billy opened the window and asked her banteringly why she didn't turn on the steam.

Her eyes were so full of smashed tears she scarcely saw what she was doing, and stepped backward on the rake. In the subsequent scramble to regain her equilibrium she dislocated her ankle and toppled over in a faint.

When she regained consciousness she was at home on the davenport with Billy bending over her tenderly, and a little later he boldly offered the information, "I always thought you needed a bodyguard, Nan—now I'm sure of it. There'll be no more 'ifs' and 'ands' about this thing. I'm going to sign up for one of those new flats on Beacon street, and we're going to be married as soon as you're able."

"But—how about the—the honeysuckle—and the suburban bungalow?" Nan asked weakly.

"What need have I for flowers," answered the young man smiling down at her, "while I have your blossom face fo look at?"

HOVEY WOMEN'S CLUB ENTERTAINS AT DANCE

More than 500 employes of the C. F. Hovey Company enjoyed themselves at the Hovey Women's Club House, Park square. Many guests helped to swell the attendance. It was the first annual May party of the Hovey Women's Club, and the proceeds will go to the sick benefit fund of the organization.

Many musical dances were given. Refreshments were served during the intermission. The officers of the C. F. Hovey Company and their wives were the guests of honor.

They included Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Sterne, Mr. and Mrs. H. Fraser Kammeyer and Mr. and Mrs. Blake Lockarck. Adolph Ehrlich, president of the organization, was unable to attend, owing to a recent death in his family.

Public Control Bill Probe Would Not Cut Car Fares

The Attorney-General has found, as the Boston American said he would be obliged to find as a sound lawyer, that evidence of corruption in the passing of the Public Control bill under its circumstances would not enable the Legislature to repeal the bill. The Legislature has dismissed the whole question, as the Boston American predicted that it would; also as the Boston American has predicted, no harm has been done by the refusal of the Attorney-General and the Legislature to become involved in such mock proceedings as the investigation of alleged corruption for the purpose of repealing the Public Control bill.

The way to a reduced carfare on our street railway system is not through an investigation of the methods by which the Public Control bill was passed, nor yet by an attempt to repeal the Public Control bill, which in the remote event of its success would only turn the street railway back to its old private managers at a time when the five-cent fare contract had expired and when the old private managers and stockholders could charge whatever fare they pleased to the point at which they were earning a reasonable return on their investment, which would be a high point indeed. If all this noise had led to a repudiation of the Public Control bill it not only would have failed to reduce the fares, but would almost certainly have stopped the steady reduction of the fares, which has been going on under the Public Control bill until today 20 per cent. of the passengers are riding for five cents.

The Boston American wishes again to lay great stress upon the fact that an investigation of the methods by which the Public Control bill was passed has nothing whatever to do with a reduction to the five-cent fare. Moreover, if it is being urged as a means of repealing the Public Control bill it would affect the five-cent fare prospect only by postponing the prospect of a five-cent fare.

On the other hand, if there has been any corruption in the passing of the Public Control bill it ought to be investigated, for corruption in the passing of our laws is the worst crime which could be committed against the State. It is far worse than a bank robbery, because a bank robbery only affects one bank and the few who do business with it, while corruption in the passing of our laws affects us all. But it is a crime, and crimes ought to be attended to by criminal courts, where the criminals can be indicted, tried, convicted and sent to jail. Our criminal courts are equipped with all the means known to man for getting evidence. Such evidence as was gathered by the legislative investigation was turned over to District Attorney Pelletier two years ago and he apparently found nothing warranting him to indict anybody. If he was derelict in his duty, then we have District Attorney O'Brien, whom nobody charges or ever has charged with lacking courage, ability or integrity.

If anybody has any evidence that this bill was passed by corrupt means, then let them turn their evidence over to District Attorney O'Brien and this newspaper will be among the foremost in urging Mr. O'Brien to go on in making his investigation.

We believe that there never was an important corporation law that was passed with less lobbying and corruption than this law. However, there are lots of people who believe to the contrary and it would be well to have the district attorney make his investigation.

The Attorney-General himself could investigate it as a crime. Both the Attorney-General and the district attorney could unite in the investigation.

Yet all this is not getting or tending to get a five-cent fare. The way to get a five-cent fare is entirely different. The Legislature can give us a five-cent fare, but the Legislature is dying—only a few days are left of its life and gentlemen who want a five-cent fare ought not to delay, if they really want it—in going to the Legislature with a practical, constructive plan to get a five-cent fare.

The Boston American has already given its view of the way the fare can be reduced. Briefly, it is by providing for public ownership and operation of the road, and by relieving the car riders of those burdens which have been imposed upon them because the public once foolishly allowed a public function to be privately performed for a private profit.

Judge Pierce Exonerated

Sensible People Never Believed That the Proceedings Seriously Involved His Integrity

After reflection, we feel that the legislative committee has done well to exonerate Judge Pierce.

Sensible people who were not so violently prejudiced against the Supreme Court that they could not be fair never for a moment believed that the proceedings against Judge Pierce seriously involved his integrity. The issue was really whether he had violated one of the extra commandments imposed upon public servants, that they should never do anything that EVEN RAISES A QUESTION as to its propriety, for the reason that people have no time and ought not to be asked to be constantly settling delicate questions of honor involving their public servants.

Judge Pierce was one of the kindest, most efficient trial judges in the Superior Court before Governor Walsh raised him to the Supreme Court. If anything, this case shows that Judge Pierce had too much easy good nature, and was not a particularly good judge of some men.

That Russian Money

Who Got It?

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

Senator Borah renders useful public service in pressing his investigation into the spending of 187,000,000 of American dollars by the so-called Russian Ambassador.

If Mr. Borah gets to the bottom of the little story, which probably he won't—for it's well protected—it will be found that the many millions that American taxpayers provided for "poor Russia and her new government" got no farther than Wall Street.

There were gentlemen down there fools enough to trust the Czar and his agents. They held Russian notes and promises to pay that they would gladly have sold for fifty cents on the dollar—or ten cents. Then the great-hearted American people, when Russia was trying to be a good little republic, poured out cash which was used to pay the debts of the Czar to the gentlemen of Wall Street.

There are many ways of making fools of the American people. The Russian Ambassador represents one of those ways.

PERSONS born during the period, May 20 to June 21, are born under the Zodiac sign of Gemini, and their natures partake of the duality of that sign. They are in general double natures, involving diametric contradictions.

They want to travel and they want to stay at home; they want to act and they want to meditate; they are happy and unhappy; and satisfied and dissatisfied at the same time. They are proud, generous and improvident; affectionate, but jealous and suspicious. They are extremely quick intellectually, but what they achieve they achieve by intuition rather than analysis. They are religious and artistic, but rather dogmatic in their creeds.

Today is one of misfortune for all relations between the two sexes. Avoid personal quarrels lest they become permanent enmities.

The next year of your life will bring you worry and scandal and disaster unless you are extremely guarded in all your personal relations during the sign of Pisces, February 19 to March 21.

A child born today will be observant and critical of his parents and elders.

SEASONAL FEVERS AND HOW TO MAKE THEM JOYS

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

(Copyright, 1922, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

EVERY little season has a "fever" of its own. Happy the person who escapes them all.

We are all familiar with the Spring fever and its lazying accompaniment of "that tired feeling," for which there is a variety of prescriptions from the old-fashioned sulphur and molasses to the new-fangled tonic of this that-or-the-other sarsaparilla.

When this fever has been cured and forgotten, duly comes Summer with its train of attendant distempers and complaints, which cause the weather-beaten (I. e., those defeated by climatic conditions) to sweat and fume and fret.

Universal Vacation

For Summer troubles, only the universal vacation of two weeks, or two months can bring a compensating balm. So it appears.

The Autumn arrives, with its so-called melancholy days, and to the seasonal fever adds its alternating chills. And again those folks who enjoy ill health (whatever that may mean) seem to be justified in a new spell of self-sympathy.

The Winter, of course, is the surest provider of weather conversations and seasonal disorders.

From the banal and bromidic inquiry whether it is raw enough for you to the sniffling announcement of a cold, and swell appropriation of your share of the flu, and the climax of proud recovery from pneumonia—grim Winter is the wholesaler of those many ills to which human flesh presumably is heir.

And yet it is possible, and certainly desirable, to develop toward all these seasonal fevers an indifference at least a degree of aloofness and superior disdain—not to say of poised serenity—which will fairly stare them out of countenance.

No new cult is herewith suggested to you; nor anything at all occult. Only a mere assertion of yourself, and in the place of petty self-indulgence a maintenance of the dignity which befits a human being.

If you do not want it, for the pitiable pleasure of being sorry for yourself, you need have no Spring fever. Instead of artificial tonic, you may tone up your nature by attuning it with universal nature.

Whatever sense of tension you have allowed the harsher conditions of Winter to impose upon you, is all the greater reason for rejoicing in the relaxation permitted by the milder days of Spring.

If you must have a seasonal fever now, let it be the fever of your new joy in living. Share the jubilation of the Universal Mother as she adorns herself gladly in the reborn beauty and fertility of this goodly frame, the earth.

With Festivals

Throughout the northerly temperate climes, the races of men have welcomed this season with exuberant festivals, which have survived for the Hebraic Christian groups in the gladsome Passover and Easter.

Let at least so much of the native pagan stir in you as will proclaim you an unalienated child of nature and permit you to experience each Spring the fever of joy in new life.

When Summer comes, you need not succumb.

Take for granted that occasional outbursts of solar fervor are an inevitable part of the process of ripening the crops which provide your sustenance.

With the waning of our seasonal year in Autumn, you need not court an orphan's mournfulness.

As for the Winter, that should not bring to you a train of terrors of difficulty and disease, but a season of test and challenge, which always you face bravely and bear beautifully.

And the whole seasonal year, far from bringing you a succession of fevers which you need to escape, blesses you with endless variables of joy and profit in living.

Letter to the Editor

Shattuck Compromise

Editor Boston American:

No one need wonder that the representatives of the women's organizations fairly besieged with protests members of the Legislature who supported the Shattuck "compromise" measure in regard to State versus country control of prisons.

The so-called compromise is utterly unacceptable to the women, as it does not, in fact, give the State the control of the inmates now kept in county institutions.

DO YOU PREPEND YOUR MONEY BEFORE YOU GET IT?

Isn't it true that most of your worry comes from spending your income before you get it?

You buy this article and that, feeling sure that within a short time you will have the money to pay for it, and perhaps you might be able to pay it the money comes when and as you expect it.

But there are unexpected expenses, some persons fail to meet their obligations to you, and then you fall in turn to meet the debts you have incurred.

The worry you have at present is the result of creditors pressing their just claims, and it might have been avoided if you had used better judgment in waiting till you had the money to pay before you bought.

Also you would not make so many needless expenditures if you followed the plan of having the cash before you spend.

Think it over, you who have been accustomed to buy before you have the money to pay, and answer yourself whether you got enough enjoyment to repay you out of the things you went in debt for and had to worry along to pay for.

Earn first—then spend, but save some.

Anything else is a peace destroying process.

REPRESENTATIVE EBEN S. DRAPER, having completed a term in the House, is now a candidate for the State Senate. His father took a shorter and more direct course to the governorship.

Another Governor's son takes a place in the political spotlight. ROGER WOLCOTT has been elected President of the Roosevelt Club.

At the insistence of REPRESENTATIVE ROLAND D. SAWYER, the only clergyman in the Legislature, an investigation is going to be made of fly-by-night milk contractors who pay the farmers a high price for a few weeks and then depart in the stillness of the night, leaving only a batch of bad bills behind them.

You may have heard quite a lot about telephone girls, in regard to their speed and accuracy, but the ten girls who operate the large switchboard at City Hall are considered the most efficient in the city. MISS ALICE LEONARD, who takes care of MAYOR CURLEY'S personal telephone board, ranks in Class A-1 as an operator.

While it may be true that several removals will take place shortly at City Hall, it doesn't follow that a wholesale slaughter will be in order. To those city employes on the anxious seat the following words of MAYOR CURLEY may have a quieting effect: "There is no justification for the removal of competent men."

"JOE" MONAHAN, the vital statistics expert of the Health Department, has a couple of machines in his department that do everything but talk and sometimes they do that. He takes personal care of them, feeds them a lot of paper each day, and they, in turn, tell the public how many a day, month and year "go west."

If we could pick them like Jack Conway does, we wouldn't hesitate to say SHERMAN L. WHIPPLE certainly will be a candidate for United States Senator.

Have you ever met "SUNSHINE GENE," the assistant chief of the Food Division of the Health Department of the city. When "Gene" isn't smiling he is known as DR. EUGENE A. DOWD. He smiled his way through France with the 101st Infantry and back again. He never fails to shine 365 days a year.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON EARTH'S WEIGHT

By Garrett P. Serviss

"How much does the earth weigh? If it weighed only one-tenth as much as it does, how much less force would be required to bend it out of a straight line and hold it in its present orbit?—J. C., Chicago."

THE earth weighs six sextillion tons; the sun 332,000 times as much. If the earth's weight were reduced to one-tenth of its present amount the reduction of force required to retain it in its orbit would be too slight to be noticed, although measureable. You can figure it out for yourself from the following data:

The attraction between two bodies, each free to move in obedience to the force exerted by the other, is measured by the sum of their masses divided by the square of the distance between their centres. This gives what is called the "relative acceleration." Since the earth weighs only one 332,000th part as much as the sun, the sum of their masses is 332,000. If the earth's weight were reduced to one-tenth of its present amount the sun would outweigh it 3,320,000 times to 1, and the sum of their weights would be, using the same units as before, 332,000.11 (i. e., 3,320,001 divided by 10), a reduction of less than a millionth in the sum of the attractive force, or the relative acceleration.

An Imaginary Adventure

"Since the earth revolves on its axis once in every twenty-four hours, why should it not be possible for a person to ascend to a height removed from atmospheric influence surrounding the earth, and by remaining absolutely stationary in his place allow the earth to revolve under him, so that in an hour 1,000 miles of space would have passed on and left him that distance from his starting point?—X. Y. Z., Ganaudoque, Ont."

It would be a great adventure, provided that the traveler could get out of the atmosphere and then could remain motionless. But you overlook one thing that would have to be provided for in addition to getting free from the rotational momentum which he possessed when he started from the earth's surface.

Suppose he started from latitude 40 degrees north; then he would have (derived from the rotating earth) an eastward velocity of about 707 miles an hour. This would accompany him even after he got above the atmosphere, and would prevent him from remaining motionless in one spot, for it would carry him in the direction in which the earth turned. Nevertheless he would gradually fall behind, having a greater distance to travel in proportion as his remoteness from the earth's centre exceeded that of the surface. If he did not go very high the rate at which the earth's surface would gain upon him would be slow, and he would seem to be drifting gently westward over the continent.

But, if he could get rid of this momentum, setting himself absolutely free from both that and the atmosphere, it would be a great sight that he would behold, unless atmospheric reflection and clouds cut off the view, which might, alas, be the case.

Granted a clear view, however, he would, if he started from above the Atlantic seaboard, see the United States or Canada, the Great Lakes, the vast interior valleys and lines of snow-crowned mountain peaks bordering the Pacific on the southeast, rolling eastward beneath him at more than 700 miles an hour (it would be 1,000 if he were over the equator).

A Magnificent View

And if his elevation were 100 miles he would have visible below him a circle of earth 900 miles in radius and consequently covering two and one-half million square miles.

A remarkable fact would be the constant presence of the sun virtually unmoving at the point in the sky where it was when he stabilized himself, for the only motion he would be aware of would be the steady rotation of the earth on its axis. It would be as if the great globe were exhibiting itself to him, a spectator seated quietly in the gallery of heaven, and he were exhibiting a mighty lamp fixed in the black, star-gemmed dome above — for free from the atmosphere he would have no blue sky — and of air over him and would see sun and stars at once.

In short, however impossible the achievement of such a feat may at present appear, in spite of our amazing aerial conquests, the infinite lure of the adventure —a lure that increases in force the more scientifically trained the imagination of the dreamer is—must make men think of this thing again and again until—who can say?—the time may come that it shall be done, in some manner now totally unforeseen.

EX LIBRIS

By Zoe B. Faber

IF you chance to be one of the many hundreds of piano students who are studying in Boston, it will interest you to know about a book called "Music Study in Germany," by Amy Fay. It is not, of course, of the music study in Germany today, for that is just about at a standstill. On the contrary, it dates back to the years when the musical comet, Wagner, dawned in German skies.

One of the several remarkable things about the book (which, by the way, is a collection of letters written home) is the fact that this, the printing of 1922, is the twenty-first edition. The subject is such a narrow one that so widespread an interest is unusual.

The outstanding figure of Miss Fay's first-hand impressions is Franz Liszt, with whom she studied at Weimar. The contrast that is drawn between Liszt and Tausig, and also between Liszt and Kullak, is fascinating to the student, who is as interested in the personality of the composer as in the work that he produces.

Aside from the musical notes and impressions, Miss Fay has contributed some delightful sketches to the volumes written before and since on the beauties of the Rhine cities. In the company of several artists, the writer made some of the most delightful excursions to Bonn, where she visited the house of Beethoven, and to many of the smaller German cities, which are chiefly interesting in this connection because of their association with the names of great musicians.

The book is delightful if your heart is in its subject. McMillan are the publishers.
